PREFACE

This report has been prepared for the Public Lands Foundation (PLF) by Glendon E. Collins, Secretary of the PLF, as part of the PLF's project to commemorate the 200th Anniversary of the establishment of the General Land Office. It documents the organizational history of the U. S. Bureau of Land Management (BLM) and the line office managers who have headed the principal offices of the agency. Since the roots of the BLM are in the Grazing Service, the General Land Office and the O&C Revested Lands Administration, this record includes the offices and managers of those agencies as well.

This report began as a project undertaken by the Public Lands Foundation to help the Bureau of Land Management celebrate its 50th Anniversary on July 16, 1996. On that date the PLF presented BLM with a "Historical Record of Bureau of Land Management Office Managers 1946 - 1996" that included the names and dates of tenure of BLM's State Directors and District Managers. That Historical Record was prepared in recognition and remembrance of the leaders who had guided the agency in its mission to protect and manage the public lands of the United States.

At the annual PLF Conference in Denver in September 1996, the members present decided that the Historical Record should be expanded to include managers of Resource Area Offices, Land Offices, Service Centers, and other special offices of the Bureau. So an October 1998 edition of the "Historical Record of the Offices and Office Managers of the U. S. Bureau of Land Management and Its Predecessor Agencies, the Grazing Service, The General Land Office and the O&C Revested Lands Administration, 1934 - 1998" was prepared and printed. Copies were presented to the BLM and are on file in the PLF Archives located at the BLM National Training Center in Phoenix, Arizona.

In addition to listing the offices and office managers, the 1998 report also included a history of the organizational changes that have occurred in the BLM, beginning with the Regional and Area Organizations, and later with the State Offices and the District Offices, Resource Area Offices and Field Offices.

In 2012, the Public Lands Foundation sponsored a "GLO Project" to commemorate the 200th Anniversary of the establishment of the General Land Office in 1812. As part of this GLO Project, the 1998 edition of the "Historical Record" was updated to include the 1998 - 2012 information regarding offices, managers and organizational changes.

This "Historical Record of BLM Offices, Managers and Organizations," completed in April 2012, is a "genealogy" of the BLM:

- it describes the evolution of the organizational structures of the BLM and its predecessor agencies: - the General Land Office, the Grazing Service, and the Oregon & California Revested Lands Administration; and
- it lists the names of the nearly 1600 line managers who headed the various offices of these agencies during the 1934 - 2012 period.

However, the lists do not include the names of the many other BLM leaders whose contributions were made in Associate, Assistant and Staff positions in the Washington Office, State Office and District Offices during this same period.

THE PUBLIC LANDS FOUNDATION

P. O. Box 7226

Arlington Virginia 22207

The Public Lands Foundation (PLF) is a national 501(c)(3) non-profit organization established in 1987 that advocates for the retention of America's public lands in public hands, professionally and sustainably managed for responsible common use and enjoyment. PLF's membership is made up primarily of retired Bureau of Land Management (BLM) employees, and represents a broad spectrum of knowledge and professional experience in public land management. The PLF has a shared interest in the management of the public lands in the National System of Public Lands, which is managed by the BLM for the benefit of our communities, for future generations and under the principles of multiple use.

INTRODUCTION

The Public Lands Foundation (PLF) has prepared this report to provide an historical record of the principal offices of the U. S. Bureau of Land Management (BLM) and its predecessor agencies, and the names, titles and dates of tenure of the managers who have headed these offices during the 1934 - 2012 period.

The General Land Office (GLO) was created by Congress in 1812 to administer the disposal of the public domain lands.

The Grazing Service was created by the Department of the Interior in 1934 to administer livestock grazing on the remaining public domain lands as authorized by the Taylor Grazing Act of 1934.

The Oregon & California (O&C) Revested Lands Administration was created in 1937 to manage the timber resources on the railroad grant lands in western Oregon which had been returned (revested) to federal ownership in 1916. The O&C organization was assigned to the General Land Office.

The Bureau of Land Management (BLM) was created by Congress in 1946, by the merger of the General Land Office, the Grazing Service, and the O&C Revested Lands Administration.

This "Historical Record of Offices, Managers and Organizations" includes the Washington Headquarters Office and the State and Local Offices of these four organizations, and the list of line managers who have headed these offices. The listings of offices include both the currently existing offices and the former offices that have been re-designated and/or closed by reorganizations. Offices which currently exist in 2012 are listed in bold type. Offices that have been closed or re-designated as a result of reorganizations are listed in non-bold type.

For offices that originated in the Grazing Service and O&C Revested Lands Administration, the names of the pre-1946 District Graziers and District Foresters are included where the information is available. The listings of BLM State Directors in the individual States also includes the State Supervisors who held the State Office positions during the BLM's 1954 - 1961 Area Office organization. The listing of District Managers includes the District Range Managers and District Foresters who held these positions prior to about 1958.

To help explain the BLM organization and the changes that have been made in position titles and office locations, this historical record also describes the major organizational changes which the BLM has made in the field offices over the past 66 years. Brief historical information about the formation of many of the individual offices is also included.

This historical record begins with background information on the organizations and managers of the three agencies, the Grazing Service, the General Land Office and the O&C Revested Lands Administration, which were merged in 1946 to form the BLM. The BLM's field office organization has evolved out of the organizational structure which the BLM inherited from these three agencies, and many of the leaders of the Bureau during its early decades came from these three predecessor agencies.

GRAZING SERVICE 1934 - 1946

Grazing Service was established as the Division of Grazing in the Department of the Interior in 1934, to implement the Taylor Grazing Act's provisions for authorizing livestock grazing on the public domain lands in 10 western states. It was renamed the Grazing Service in 1939, but continued to operate as part of the Office of the Secretary of the Interior until July 11, 1944, when it was established as an operating Bureau in the Department. In 1941, the Grazing Service headquarters was moved from Washington, DC to Salt Lake City, Utah, a temporary arrangement during World War II.

The Grazing Service operated until July 16, 1946, when it and the General Land Office were combined into the new Bureau of Land Management. Its grazing functions were then performed by a Branch of Range Management in the new Bureau of Land Management.

GRAZING SERVICE DIRECTORS

Ferrington R. Carpenter	1934 - 1938
Richard H. Rutledge	1938 - 1944
Clarence Forsling	1944 - 1946

Grazing Service Director Carpenter's original intention was to administer the Grazing Service's program with 20 federal employees who would guide local Advisory Boards composed of livestock operators in setting up the Grazing Districts, allocating grazing livestock numbers and issuing grazing permits.

These first 20 employees were Depue Falck, John Deeds, Archie D. Ryan, G. M. Kerr, J. Q. Peterson, Joe Leech, Marvin Klemme, E. R. (Tiny) Greenslet, Robert E. Morgan, Albion D. (Bud) Molohan, Charles F. (Frank) Moore, C. F. (Bud) Dierking, Milo Deming, Perry T. Williams, Warren R. Scholes, Luster R. Brooks (aka Lester R. Brooks), Ed Keefe, E. H. Frenzell, Gaylor G. Frazier, and Albert Shunk.

Beginning in 1935, 10 Regional Grazing Offices were established in the western states. These Regional Grazing Offices were staffed with the 20 men listed above who were appointed to positions of Regional Graziers and Graziers Aides. Their job was to organize Grazing Districts and District Advisory Boards composed of livestock operators, and to assist these Advisory Boards in authorizing livestock grazing on the large areas of public domain lands within the established Grazing Districts.

The following is a list of the Regional Grazing Offices, their locations and the Regional Graziers, taken primarily from 1936 - 1941 editions of "The Grazing Bulletin," a quarterly publication of the Grazing Service, and from 1939 - 1942 editions of "The Range Rider," a weekly and later monthly publication of the Grazing Service.

Under the direction of these Regional Offices, a total of 60 Grazing Districts were established during the 1935 - 1946 period in the Rocky Mountain and Great Basin areas of the western States. The 60 Grazing Districts were located in Arizona (4), California (2), Colorado (8), Idaho (5), Montana (6), New Mexico (7), Nevada (5), Oregon (7), Utah (11), and Wyoming (5), and included a total of about 142,000,000 acres of public lands.

Originally each Grazing District was identified by a number assigned by the Grazing Service. In 1940, names recommended by the livestock operators were assigned to each Grazing District. The purpose of the change from numbers to names was to give each district a distinctive or characteristic name which would fix it in the minds of the local people as well as indicate its geographic location. Each Grazing District covered a specific geographic area that typically included several millions of acres of public domain lands in large blocks.

In some states, large acreages of public lands were not included in Grazing Districts because they either had low potential for livestock grazing, i. e. the public lands in Alaska and in the forested or hot desert areas of the other western states, or because the public land tracts were too scattered for effective federal control of livestock grazing. Livestock grazing on the public lands outside of Grazing Districts was authorized by "Section 15" grazing leases issued under the authority of Section 15 of the Taylor Grazing Act.

In the Battle Mountain area of central Nevada, the ranchers did not want a federal grazing district in the 1930s, because they did not want the federal government authorizing livestock grazing on what they considered to be their ranges. It was not until after the creation of the BLM that the Battle Mountain Grazing District was established in 1951.

A list of the 61 Grazing Districts and the dates they were established is included as Appendix 1 of this report.

By 1936, it was apparent that more employees were needed to administer the program at the local level, and to help with the expanding Civilian Conservation Corps (C.C.C.) program that was constructing range improvements on the public lands. Beginning in about 1937, the Grazing Service began opening District Offices with a District Grazier in many of the Grazing Districts. Each Grazing District also had an Advisory Board, composed primarily of range users, which played a major role in forming the Grazing Districts, adjudicating the range use, and issuing the first grazing authorizations.

After the BLM was established in 1946, most of these Grazing District Offices became BLM District offices which continued to administer the "Grazing Districts" that had been established by the Grazing Service. During the 1950s and 1960s, the role and responsibilities of the BLM Districts were expanded to multiple use management of all of the public land resources on all of the public lands in the District, not just range management on the lands inside the "established grazing districts." These changes, along with the declining role and eventual dissolution of the Grazing Advisory Boards, gradually brought an end to the dominating role that range management played in the early history of the BLM.

Since the Grazing Service and its leaders and offices were the foundation for the BLM offices and managers in most of the western States, the record of the Grazing Service offices and office heads are included in this Historical Record.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE 1812 - 1946

Congress created the General Land Office (GLO) in 1812 to oversee the disposition of the public domain lands through a network of local or District Land Offices. The GLO established Land Districts in the mid-western, southern and western States; opened the public lands to settlement; authorized the opening of Land Offices; and authorized the appointment of Registers and Receivers, who were the officials who kept the public land records, and received and processed land applications and fees.

To run each Land Office, the Secretary of the Interior would appoint a Register and a Receiver to serve at the Secretary's pleasure, for a term of 4 years. The Register was charged with maintaining the Office, keeping the land records, taking depositions, etc. The Receiver was normally the person receiving filings and was accountable for money received. Each was provided a base pay of $500 per year plus one percent of fees and commissions received, not to exceed a total pay of $3,000 per year. All additional monies went to the U. S. Treasury.

In 1946, when the General Land Office and the Grazing Service were combined to form the Bureau of Land Management (BLM), the Registers and Receivers were replaced with a Land Office Manager who was a BLM employee.

In addition to its land records and land disposal functions, the GLO also administered the cadastral survey program which prepared the land surveys that were needed for land disposals. In 1938, the GLO was also assigned the responsibility for the Oregon and California Revested Lands forestry program in western Oregon.

A total of 35 Commissioners of the General Land Office served during the 134 year life of the agency. The last Commissioner, Fred Johnson who served from 1933 to 1946, also served two years as the first Director of the Bureau of Land Management.

Land Offices

Between 1812 and 1946, Land Offices were established in nearly 400 cities and towns in 31 midwestern, southern and western States to carry out the program of disposing of the public domain lands.

Land Offices would be opened as settlers moved into new areas of public land, and would be closed after most of the public lands had been transferred to private ownership. The Land Records from the closed Land Office would be consolidated with those of other Land Offices, usually within the same State. The Land Records for the western States are maintained in the BLM State Offices. The Land Records for the mid-western and eastern States are maintained in the BLM's Eastern States Office in Springfield, Virginia.

By 1948, after the General Land Office had been merged into the BLM, the number of Land Offices had been reduced to 20 offices in the following locations:

Alaska	Anchorage, Fairbanks and Nome
Arizona	Phoenix
California	Sacramento and Los Angeles
Colorado	Denver and Pueblo
Idaho	Boise
Montana	Billings and Great Falls
Nevada	Carson City
New Mexico	Santa Fe and Las Cruces
Oregon	Portland
Utah	Salt Lake City
Washington	Spokane
Wyoming	Cheyenne, Buffalo and Evanston

By 1950, each state had only one Land Office except for California (Sacramento and Los Angeles) and Alaska (Anchorage and Fairbanks).

In 1965, the Land Office Manager position was merged with the Chief, Lands and Minerals Division in each BLM State Office to create a position of Chief, Division of Lands and Minerals Program Management and Land Office. In 1971, the Land Offices were eliminated as separate units within the BLM organization, and the Land Office functions were absorbed by the various State Office and District Office staffs in each State.

O&C REVESTED LANDS ADMINISTRATION

The Oregon and California (O&C) Revested Lands Sustained Yield Management Act of 1937 required intensive management of the timbered public lands in western Oregon. In 1938, the O&C Revested Lands Administration was established for this purpose and assigned to the General Land Office.

The General Land Office appointed Walter Horning as Chief Forester of the O&C Revested Lands Administration who served in this capacity from 1938 - 1946. In the late 1930s and early 1940s, five O&C District Forestry Offices, each headed by a District Forester, were established in Coos Bay, Eugene, Medford, Roseburg, and Salem, Oregon to manage these "O&C Lands."

These District Forestry Offices later became BLM District Forestry Offices when the General Land Office with its O&C Revested Lands Administration was merged into the BLM in 1946.

The names of these pre-1946 O&C Administration District Foresters are included in the lists of the BLM Managers contained in this report. In 1947, Chief Forester Walter Horning was appointed as the first Regional Director of Region I in BLM's new Regional organization.

MERGER OF THE GRAZING SERVICE, THE GENERAL LAND OFFICE AND THE O&C REVESTED LANDS ADMINISTRATION TO FORM THE BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT IN 1946

On July 16, 1946, Congress established the Bureau of Land Management by the merger of two existing agencies, the Grazing Service and the General Land Office with its O&C Revested Lands Administration unit.

At the time of the merger, the General Land Office's field organization consisted of District Land Offices in the 11 western states and Alaska, District Forestry Offices in Oregon, and the cadastral survey program. The field organization of the Grazing Service consisted of Regional and District Grazing Offices in Oregon, California, Nevada, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, New Mexico and Arizona.

After the merger, the Regional Grazing Offices were eliminated. The District Grazing and Forestry Offices were absorbed into the new BLM organization, and most continued to operate for over 50 years as the principal offices for the on-the-ground management activities of the BLM.

The District Land Offices continued to operate as separate offices until they were merged with the new BLM State Offices in the early 1950s. By the early 1970s, the Land Offices and the Land Office Managers had been phased out and the land office functions had been reassigned to State Office and District Office staffs.

BLM's MERGER WITH THE MINERALS MANAGEMENT SERVICE

In January 1982, the Secretary of the Interior realigned the mineral leasing responsibilities of the BLM and the leasable mineral management responsibilities of the U. S. Geological Survey (USGS). The BLM's Outer Continental Shelf mineral leasing responsibilities and its Outer Continental Shelf Offices in New Orleans, Los Angeles, Anchorage and New York City were combined with the USGS's Conservation Division to form a new Interior agency, the Minerals Management Service (MMS).

In December 1982, the Secretary transferred the on-shore mineral management functions of the Minerals Management Service to the BLM, leaving MMS responsible for royalty management and offshore mineral leasing. As a result of this merger:

- BLM assumed major new responsibilities for mineral resource evaluation, approval of drilling permits and mining and production plans on mineral leases, and inspection and enforcement of mineral leasing on federal and Indian lands;
- 800 MMS employees (who a year earlier had been USGS employees) were transferred to the BLM;
- Three new BLM District Offices were opened in Jackson, Mississippi; Milwaukee, Wisconsin; and Tulsa, Oklahoma;
- Two new Resource Area Offices were created from MMS Offices in Great Falls, MT and Pocatello, ID, and a BLM Project Office in Oklahoma City was re-designated as the Oklahoma Resource Area Office;
- MMS managers were reassigned to the BLM State Director position in Wyoming, and to District Manager positions in two BLM District Offices at Roswell, NM and Grand Junction, CO.
- The Jackson, Mississippi Office had been a MMS office that absorbed the BLM's staff from the Tuscaloosa, Alabama Project Office and became a BLM District Office reporting to the Eastern States Office.
- The Milwaukee Office was a new office that combined the staff from the BLM's Lakes States Office in Duluth, Minnesota with staff from a MMS Indianapolis, Indiana Office to form a new BLM Milwaukee District Office reporting to the Eastern States Office.
- The Tulsa Office was a long established USGS/MMS office that was re-designated as a BLM Tulsa District Office reporting to the New Mexico State Office.
- The Great Falls Resource Area Office was a former USGS, later MMS, office that was re-designated as the Great Falls Resource Area Office in the Lewistown District.
- The Pocatello Resource Area Office was established in the Idaho Falls District by moving the existing BLM Soda Springs Resource Area staff out of Soda Springs and into an existing MMS office in Pocatello.
- The Oklahoma Resource Area Office had been a Project Office reporting to the Albuquerque District Manager before being reassigned to the new Tulsa District Office.

BLM'S STATE OFFICE ORGANIZATION 1961 - PRESENT

In 1961, the BLM's Area Office organization and the four Area Offices were eliminated, and the State Supervisors in 11 of the western States and Alaska were retitled as State Directors reporting directly to the BLM Director in the Washington Headquarters Office. At that time, the State Office and the State Supervisor position in Spokane, Washington were eliminated, and responsibility for management of the BLM public lands in the State of Washington was assigned to the Oregon State Office in Portland.

The State Directors and the State Office Staff oversee the operations of the District offices and their subordinate Resource Area Offices and Field Offices. The District Office - Resource Area Office - Field Office organizations in each State have been reorganized several times during the past 50 years.

DISTRICT OFFICE - RESOURCE AREA OFFICE - FIELD OFFICE ORGANIZATIONS 1946 - PRESENT

District Offices

The District Office has been the "on-the-ground" land management office since the Grazing and Forestry District Offices of the Grazing Service and O&C Administration were created in the late 1930s. In 1946, the BLM absorbed these offices and, during the first decade of the new Bureau, the District Grazing and Forestry Offices continued their primary grazing and forestry functions. The managers of the District Offices were titled District Range Managers or District Foresters.

During the 1950s, BLM created additional District Grazing Offices to manage grazing on the "Section 15" lands outside the organized Grazing Districts, and several additional Forestry Districts were created to manage public domain forest areas in California, Oregon, Idaho, Washington and Alaska.

During the first two decades of BLM history, the Districts Offices focused management of range and forest resources, and District Office staffs were composed primarily of Range Conservationists and Foresters, with a wildlife specialist assigned to most Districts.

The BLM's Lands and Minerals program, inherited from the former General Land Office, continued to be operated by the Land Offices which were headquartered at the State Offices. The BLM Lands and Mineral specialists, who processed land disposal and mineral leasing applications, worked for the State Office/Land Office organization. District Managers could make recommendations about land sales and mineral leases, but the decisions were made at the State Office level, and were governed mainly by the requirements of the long-standing public land disposal laws.

In about 1958, the BLM began delegating a broader and more responsible role to the District Offices. District Grazing Offices and District Forestry Offices were re-designated as District Offices and the managers' titles were changed to District Manager. By 1970, the Land Office organization in the BLM had been eliminated, and most of the public land disposal laws were repealed by the Federal Land Policy and Management Act (FLPMA) in 1976. By 1980, the responsibilities of the District Managers were expanded to include the full range of management of natural and cultural resources and public uses on the BLM lands.

Resource Area Offices

In 1955, the BLM in Idaho began the practice of subdividing Districts into subordinate organizational units that were later named Resource Areas. Each Resource Area was responsible for land management of a specific geographic area within a District. Each Resource Area Office was headed by a Resource Area Manager who reported to the District Manager. The Resource Area concept was initiated in the Burley District and was expanded to the other Idaho Districts by the early 1960s. By 1965, the Resource Area concept was adopted officially by the Bureau and was implemented in Districts in the other States.

As a general rule, District Offices and detached Resource Area Offices were named for the city or town where the office was located. Resource Areas which were co-located with the District Office were named after some geographic feature.

Field Offices

In 1996, the BLM began phasing out the three-tiered State Office - District Office - Resource Area Office organization, and re-designating the District Offices and Resource Area Offices as Field Offices that reported directly to the State Offices. The result of this reorganization in most States was that the Resource Area Offices that were co-located with the District Offices were abolished; and the District Offices and the detached Resource Area Offices were both re-designated as Field Offices. In several States, small offices in some rural locations remained open as Field Stations reporting to Field Offices.

In this way BLM continued to maintain offices in each location, but most offices were now designated as Field Offices headed by Field Managers who reported directly to the State Director.

This two-tiered State Office - Field Office organization accomplished the "one roof, one manager" objective of the reorganization, but BLM soon found that without mid-level management, many resource and business issues rose quickly to the State Director level instead of being resolved in the field by those most familiar with the issues on the ground. In addition, by giving up the District Manager positions, the BLM had lost a valuable training ground for future managers.

District Office/Field Office Organization

During the 2003 - 2008 period, the BLM reinstated the three-tier State Office - District Office - Field Office organization in each of the western States and Alaska, by establishing District Offices headed by District Managers to supervise groups of Field Offices headed by Field Managers.

FACTORS WHICH INFLUENCED AND GUIDED THE GROWTH AND EVOLUTION OF THE BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT 1946 - 2012

By

Glendon E. Collins

PLF Secretary and Principal Author of this Historical Record

This "Historical Record of Offices, Managers and Organizations of the Bureau of Land Management" is a "genealogy" of the BLM, which reports the "facts" about the line managers - the who was where and when - in the various organizational units of the BLM. However a Historical Record would not be complete without mention of some of the major factors which influenced the growth and evolution of the agency and the composition of its workforce during this 66 year period, 1946 - 2012. The following is:

- a summary of the ancestors and organizations of the BLM;
- a mention of the some of the factors that guided the growth and evolution of the BLM and the composition of its work force; and
- a listing of the roles and responsibilities which make the BLM unique and different from the other Federal land management agencies.

BLM's Ancestors

BLM was created in 1946 by the merger of the Grazing Service and the General Land Office with its O&C Revested Lands Administration.

In 1934, Farrington Carpenter, the first Director of the Grazing Service, intended to implement the provisions of the Taylor Grazing Act with 20 Federal employees who would guide local Advisory Boards composed of livestock operators in setting up Grazing Districts, allocating livestock numbers and issuing grazing permits.

By 1946, the Grazing Service had grown to 250 employees with 10 Regional Directors and 48 District Graziers, with clerical support, overseeing 60 Grazing Districts in nine western States.

In 1938, the O&C Revested Lands Administration was established to manage timber sales on the checkerboarded former railroad grant lands in western Oregon, which had been returned to federal ownership. The O&C Administration quickly established a Regional Administrator in Portland and District Foresters in District Offices in Coos Bay, Eugene, Medford, Roseburg and Salem. The O&C Administration was assigned to the General Land Office organization.

The General Land Office was created by Congress in 1812, and by 1946 over 400 Land Offices had been opened and closed across the country to facilitate the settlement of the West. In 1946, the GLO brought 21 Land Offices in 12 western States, Alaska and Washington D.C. into the new BLM.

BLM's Organizations and Reorganizations

In 1946, the new Bureau of Land Management adopted the Regional Office - District Office organization of the Grazing Service and the O&C, and established seven Regional Offices to oversee State groups of the 66 Grazing and Forestry Districts.

The BLM has reorganized its field organization six times in its 66 year history:

- In 1954, the seven Regional Offices were eliminated and were replaced by four Area Offices and a State Office in each State, which supervised the District Offices and the Land Offices in each State.

- In 1961, the Area Offices were eliminated. The State Offices began reporting directly to the BLM Director's Office in Washington D.C., while continuing to supervise the District and Land Offices in their State.
- In the mid-1960s, the Land Offices were eliminated, and the Land Office responsibilities were assigned to State Office and District Office staffs.
- In the mid-1960s, Resource Area Offices were created in the Districts, which established a three tier State Office - District Office - Resource Area organization in each State.
- In the late 1990s, the BLM replaced the three tier organization with a two-tier State Office - Field Office organization. The District Offices and the detached Resource Area Offices in most States were retitled Field Offices, and each Field Office reported directly to the State Office.
- In the mid-2000s, the BLM reinstated the three tier organization by re-establishing District Offices to oversee groups of Field Offices in each State.

The years, types and numbers of offices are illustrated as follows:

1946 - 1954: Regional Offices (7) - District Offices (66) - Land Offices (21)

1954 - 1961: Area Offices (4) - State Offices (13) - District Offices (71) - Land Offices (14)

1961 - 1965: State Offices (12) - District Offices (70) - Land Offices (14)

1965 - 1998: State Offices (12) - District Offices (74) - Resource Area Offices (193)

1998 - 2005: State Offices (12) - District Offices (14 in three States) - Field Offices (110)

2005 - present: State Offices (12) - District Offices (47) - Field Offices (110)

BLM's Early Mission and Workforce

In the early years, the BLM was essentially a Range/Forestry and Lands/Minerals operation. The District Offices managed the range and forest resources on BLM lands, and the Land Offices administered the lands and mineral laws and the land disposal programs.

The District managers were titled District Foresters and District Range Managers, and the District staffs were composed predominately of range and forest specialists, with one or more wildlife specialists on most District staffs.

The BLM lands and mineral examiners worked for the Land Offices and their role was to process applications for the disposal of public lands which were filed by the public under the historic Homestead, Desert Land Entry, Small Tract, and Public Sale laws. The District Managers' opinion was only advisory in land disposal decisions. There was little or no coordination with local governments, and no public involvement in the decision-making process. If the public land met the land classification criteria for disposal under the then existing public land disposal laws, the Land Office decision usually favored disposal of the land.

In 1946, the new BLM had less than 1,000 employees, and the records indicate that all of the line managers were males, except for the Land Office Managers in Evanston, Wyoming; Reno, Nevada; and Nome, Alaska.

In the late 1940s, the GI Bill enabled many of the returning WW II veterans to get a college education, and this produced a new group of foresters and range managers seeking jobs with the new BLM. The men who had led the Grazing Service and the O&C programs were retiring and were replaced by this new group of Foresters and Range Managers who would fill most of the line manager positions in BLM during the 1950 - 1980 era.

In the early 1960s, major changes began to happen in the BLM lands and minerals programs.

Interior Secretary Udall announced an 18-month moratorium on filings of new land disposal applications to give BLM time to catch up with the backlog of pending applications.

Secretary Udall also decreed that BLM public lands would not be classified as suitable for homestead or desert land entry unless the applicant could demonstrate that a permanent source of water was available for agricultural use of the land. This essentially ended the BLM's Homestead and Desert Land Entry disposal programs.

The BLM began coordinating with the land use planning departments of County government which were concerned about the BLM's Small Tract Program that was subdividing and spreading residential use to large areas of public lands in the desert areas of the Southwest. This essentially ended the BLM's land sale programs.

In 1965, the Land Offices in the western states were eliminated as organizational units in the BLM. The Land Office functions were merged with the Lands and Minerals staff functions at the State Offices to create a State Office Division of Lands and Minerals Management and Land Office. The Lands and Minerals Examiners were reassigned to the District Offices to work for the District Managers.

In 1970, the "Land Office" was eliminated as an organizational unit in the BLM. The land office records functions were absorbed by other State and District Office staffs, and the District Managers were given full responsibility for the BLM's lands and minerals programs. The only remaining Land Office was the Eastern States Land Office in the Washington D. C. area.

In 1965, the BLM began subdividing Districts into Resource Areas and established Resource Area Managers as a third level of line managers in the BLM's field office organization. By 1972, there were nearly 200 Resource Area Manager positions in the Bureau.

In 1972, the BLM's "Manpower Report" (a then appropriate title for a BLM Personnel Roster) showed that the BLM had 5,028 employees. There were 12 State Director, 65 District Manager, and 193 Resource Area Manager positions in the BLM, and all but one were filled with male employees. Doris Koivula was the Eastern States Land Office Manager and acting Eastern States Director.

Legislation which Changed BLM's Mission and Workforce

Congress passed three Acts in the 1960s, which had major implications for the future of BLM:

- The Classification and Multiple Use Act (C&MU) Act, passed in 1964, directed the BLM to determine which of the BLM public lands should be disposed of because they were required for the orderly growth and development of a community, or were chiefly valuable for development uses, and which BLM lands should be retained in federal ownership and managed for multiple uses.

- The Wilderness Act, passed in 1964 authorized the establishment of Wilderness Areas on federal public lands.
- The National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) of 1969 required evaluation of the environmental impacts of proposed federal actions.

In the C&MU Act process,

- 174 million Acres of BLM lands were classified for retention for multiple use management,
- 3.4 million acres were classified for disposal, and
- the public was informed and involved in the decisions.

The results of the Classification and Multiple Use Act classifications set the stage for the passage of the Federal Land Policy and Management Act (FLPMA) in 1976, which designated the BLM public lands for retention in public ownership for multiple use management, unless, as a result of a resource management planning process, the lands are determined to be suitable for disposal.

FLPMA was an ðrganicö act which gave BLM the authority to retain and manage the public lands. NEPA and FLPMA changed the BLM from a range and forestry, lands and minerals operation to a multiple use management agency focused on public values and uses, and environmental concerns.

The environmental analysis requirements of NEPA, and the land use planning and wilderness inventory requirements of FLPMA required the BLM to add new natural and cultural resource expertise. In the late 1970s, the BLM rapidly expanded with an influx of new skills, the first women resource professionals, and an emphasis on planning and environmental analysis.

These new employees brought new expertise and new resource interests and values into an organization that had been focused on range, forestry, lands and minerals issues for 30 years. Procedures were changed to accommodate the requirements of NEPA, and so was the composition of the workforce.

In the 1980s, the new resource professionals who were hired in the 1970s were beginning to replace the retiring foresters and range managers who had filled the line management positions in the BLM since the early 1950s. The information in the Historical Record indicates that:

- In 1990, many of the line management positions were filled by managers who had other than range or forestry backgrounds, and 9 women were Resource Area Managers, and 3 women were District Managers.
- During the January 2000 - April 2012 period, the BLM filled 352 line management positions, and 104, or about 30% of them, were filled with women, including 68 Field Managers, 23 District Managers, 10 State Directors, and 3 Center Directors.

Names for the BLM Lands

Names for BLM land areas have been key elements in gaining public identity and support for protection and proper management of the public lands.

Under the administration of the General Land Office, the official name for the public lands was ðpublic domain,ö a term that helped foster the settlement, development and disposal mission of that agency.

In 1940, the Grazing Service recognized that giving a number to a Grazing District wasn't enough, so names recommended by the livestock operators were assigned to each Grazing District. As explained in a Grazing Service newsletter, "The purpose of the change from numbers to names was to give each district a distinctive or characteristic name which would fix it in the minds of the local people as well as indicate its geographic location." The "Maricopa Grazing District" was more meaningful to the public than "Arizona Grazing District No. 3."

Names were not an issue in BLM's early years. The Grazing Districts had names; the forestry programs were on the "O&C Lands," and the term "public domain" fit well with the BLM's lands and minerals programs.

A name for the BLM lands became more important in the 1970s as the BLM prepared for its multiple use management mission. In 1970, the Department of the Interior regulations, in 43 CFR 2071.1(v) 5, (now expired) assigned the name "national resource lands" to the BLM lands that had been classified for retention and management under the provisions of the Classification and Multiple Use Act. That same section of the regulations also provided authority for BLM to designate and name a variety of recreation and environmental sites and areas.

The term "national resource lands" never "caught on." Congress did not use it in FLPMA, which refers to the BLM lands as "public lands."

However, in the 1970s, the BLM extensively used the other provisions of 43 CFR 2071 to designate and name many "special" sites and areas as "primitive areas," "historic and cultural sites," "recreation sites," "resource conservation areas" and "areas of critical environmental concern (ACECs)." BLM also gave most of these "sites" and "areas" distinctive geographic names, many of which had been used during in the C&MU Act classification process in the late 1960s.

These geographic and descriptive names gave an identity to BLM land areas that helped generate the public support for the Wilderness Areas on BLM lands that were created by Congress in the 1980s, and the National Monuments, which were designated by the Clinton administration in the late 1990s. These, and many other "special" areas, have become the BLM's National Landscape Conservation System consisting of over 24 million acres of the "crown jewels" of the BLM lands. And, it all started when BLM began to assign "names" to BLM land areas.

The Public Lands Foundation (PLF) has long advocated for a name for the "system" of BLM lands. PLF was pleased when the Secretary of the Interior issued Public Land Order 3280 on December 16, 2008, which designated the BLM lands as the "National System of Public Lands."

BLM's Unique Role as the "Real Estate Manager" of the Federal Public Lands

In 66 years, the BLM has taken the resource management roles and responsibilities of the Grazing Service and the O&C Administration and built a multiple use land management agency that administers over 245 million acres of public land, which produce a wealth of natural, cultural and outdoor recreation resources for the public's use and enjoyment.

The General Land Office has disappeared, but has left behind with the BLM, a variety of responsibilities which make the BLM unique and a different agency than its "sister agencies" - the Forest Service, the National Park Service and the Fish and Wildlife Service. These other agencies manage only the surface resources on public land areas which have been withdrawn and designated for specific purposes. The BLM manages the mineral estate on 385 million acres beneath these National Forests, Parks and Wildlife Refuges, and on over 160 million acres of private and Native American Trust lands as well.

The responsibilities which BLM inherited from the General Land Office make BLM the real estate manager of the federal public lands. These responsibilities include:

- managing 245 million acres of the remaining public domain, now known as the National System of Public Lands,
- selling or otherwise disposing of BLM lands, when necessary (an option that the Forest Service, National Park Service, and Fish and Wildlife Service normally do not have to consider),
- administering the mineral leases and mining claims (where allowed) on 385 million acres of federal mineral estate beneath the National Forests, Parks and Wildlife Refuges,
- administering trust land mineral responsibilities on 56 million acres of Native American lands,
- administering mineral leases and mining claims on 57 million acres of federal mineral estate beneath private lands patented under the Stockraising Homestead Act, the Small Tract Act and the Recreation and Public Purposes Act and miscellaneous other statutes and situations, including being responsible for any gold, silver and mercury found on the private "Spanish Land Grant" lands in the Southwest; three minerals which were reserved to the crown when these land grants were issued by the Spanish and Mexican authorities, long before the United States and the General Land Office existed,
- selling the reserved federal mineral estate to the private surface owner after determining that the land is non-mineral in character,
- maintaining the official public land records for all of the federal lands, and the historic records of land transfers to private ownership, which are the foundation for the chain of title records for private lands in the 31 public land states,
- making cadastral land surveys on all federal lands when needed,
- periodically reviewing the land withdrawals made for other federal agency programs to determine if those lands are still needed and being used for the other agency programs, or if the lands should be returned to management by the Bureau of Land Management for other public uses,
- making compliance checks to ensure that private lands patented under the Recreation and Public Purposes Act and other special Acts of Congress for specified purposes and uses, are still being used for those purposes, and if not, approving changes of uses, or the return of the land to federal ownership, and
- administering the Wild Horse and Burro Program, and managing wild horses and burros wherever they may roam on the National System of Public Lands.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE

A total of 11 Land Offices were opened in Alaska over the years, but the two largest Land Offices were in Anchorage and Fairbanks.

The first Land Office in Alaska was opened in Sitka in 1885. By 1900, other Land Offices had been opened in Nulato, Weare, Peavy, Rampart City and Circle, but these offices, along with the Sitka Land Office, were consolidated into the Juneau Land Office which was established in 1902. The Juneau Land Office continued to serve southern Alaska from 1902 until it was closed and moved to become the Anchorage Land Office in 1923.

In 1907, the Fairbanks and Nome Land Offices were opened to serve northern and western Alaska. The Nome Land Office operated until the late 1940s. In 1958, the BLM reopened the Juneau Land Office which operated briefly until 1961, when it was again closed and combined with the Anchorage Land Office.

In 1963, the Anchorage Land Office was combined with the BLM's Alaska State Office and the Fairbanks Land Office was combined with the BLM's Fairbanks District Office. In the early 1970s, the Land Office organization was eliminated in the BLM, and the Land Office functions were assigned to State Office and District Office Staffs.

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

The Taylor Grazing Act which produced the Grazing Service did not apply to public lands in Alaska, so, unlike the other western states, there were no Grazing Service District Offices in Alaska to serve as locations for new BLM Districts.

Beginning in 1947, the BLM administered the public lands in Alaska through the Land Offices, a Regional Office in Anchorage, and later an Area Office which replaced the Regional Office in 1954. In 1961, the BLM eliminated the Area Office organization and created State Directors who reported directly to the BLM Director in Washington, D. C.

In the early 1950's, the BLM established field offices in Juneau, Anchorage and Fairbanks that were variously known as Operations Offices and District Offices. The Anchorage and Fairbanks District Offices were created in 1962. In the mid-1960s, five Resource Area Offices were created in the Anchorage District and three Resource Area Offices were created in the Fairbanks District.

In a 1986 reorganization, all of the Resource Areas in the Anchorage District were phased out, except for the Glennallen Resource Area which was elevated to District Office status.

In Fairbanks, the Fairbanks District was abolished in 1987, and was replaced by each of its three Resource Areas, the Arctic RA, Kobuk RA, and Steese-White Mountains RA, being elevated to District Office status and named the Arctic District, the Kobuk District and the Steese-White Mountains District. That organization lasted only eight years. In 1995, these three Districts were recombined into one District that was named the Northern District.

In 1998, the Anchorage, Northern, and Glennallen District Offices were re-designated as the Anchorage Field Office, the Northern Field Office and the Glennallen Field Office.

In the mid-2000s, the three-tiered State Office/District Office/Field Office organization was re-established in Alaska. In 2005, the Northern Field Office was replaced with a Fairbanks District Office and three Field Offices - an Arctic Field Office, a Central Yukon Field Office, and an Eastern Interior Field Office. In 2007, an Anchorage District Office was re-established in Anchorage to supervise the Anchorage Field Office and the Glennallen Field Office.

Field Station offices have been maintained in Tok, Nome, Kotzebue, and Barrow over the years to serve primarily as public contact stations in remote areas of the State and to assist the District Offices with field examinations and recreation management.

A Juneau Field Station office was opened in 1996, when the Bureau of Mines office in Juneau was closed and its staff was reassigned to the BLM. This Juneau Field Station Office, with its Alaska minerals assessment function, reported to the BLM's Alaska State Office until the Juneau office was closed in 2007.

Anchorage has been the location of various BLM Regional, Area, State, Land, and Operations Offices since 1946, but the Anchorage District Office was not established until about 1962. Five Resource Areas were established in the Anchorage District in 1965, and the Resource Area organization lasted for over 30 years until it was eliminated in 1986.

In 1998, the Anchorage District Office was re-designated as the Anchorage Field Office.

The 2007 reorganization restored a three-tier organization in Alaska, and an Anchorage District Office was created to supervise the operations of the Anchorage Field Office and the Glennallen Field Office.

ALASKA FIRE SERVICE

The first fire center in Alaska was the Alaskan Fire Control Service (AFCS) established by Congress in 1939, to direct the suppression of wild fires in the Territory of Alaska. In 1946, the AFCS became the Division of Forestry in the new BLM Region VII Office, and later the Area Fire Control Office in the BLM Area 4 Office. In 1962, the fire control responsibilities were re-delegated to the new Anchorage and Fairbanks District Offices.

In 1982, fire control was reassigned to an Alaska Fire Service Office that was established at Fairbanks. The Alaska Fire Service has the lead responsibility for wildland fire management on lands managed by several federal agencies, the military, and Alaska Native corporations. The Alaska Fire Service Office reports to the BLM Alaska State Director.

OFFICE OF PIPELINE MONITORING

The BLM's Office of Pipeline Monitoring, located in Anchorage, is part of a multi-agency Joint Pipeline Office established in 1990 to oversee the 800 mile Trans-Alaska Pipeline System. The BLM works with the State of Alaska and other federal agencies to monitor environmental protection, pipeline system integrity, public and worker safety, and to ensure regulatory compliance is achieved. The Office provides federal oversight of the Trans-Alaska Pipeline System, administers rights-of-way permits for use of the public lands, cultural survey activities, and material sales related to pipeline use.

The Office of Pipeline Monitoring is headed by an Authorized Officer who reports to the BLM Alaska State Director. The Office supervises Field Station Offices in Valdez and Fairbanks.

Prior to 1946, the General Land Office and the Grazing Service were responsible for activities on the public domain lands in Arizona.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE

The first Land Office in Arizona was established at Florence in 1867 and operated until 1880. Three more Land Offices were later established and operated in Prescott (1870 - 1904), Gila (1873 - 1900), and Tucson (1881 - 1904). These four Land Offices were closed and all Land Office operations were consolidated into the Phoenix Land Office which opened in 1905.

In 1946 the Phoenix Land Office became an organizational unit in the new Bureau of Land Management, and was co-located with the BLM's State Office that was established in Phoenix in 1954.

In 1971, the Land Office organization was eliminated in the BLM, and the Land Office functions were assigned to the State Office and District Office staffs.

GRAZING SERVICE

Four Grazing Districts were created in Arizona in the mid-1930s. Each Grazing District was headed by a District Grazier with clerical support and a Grazing Advisory Board. These Grazing Service Districts were:

District No. 1, the Hurricane Grazing District on the Arizona Strip, with office in St. George, Utah.

District No. 2, the Kingman Grazing District with office in Kingman, Arizona.

District No. 3, the Maricopa Grazing District with office in Phoenix, Arizona.

District No. 4, the Safford Grazing District with office in Safford, Arizona.

From 1935 to 1937, each of the Arizona District Graziers reported to a Grazing Service Regional Director located in the Grazing Service's Region 7 Office, headquartered in Albuquerque, New Mexico. In 1938, a new Grazing Service Region 9 Office was created in Phoenix to supervise the Arizona Grazing Districts.

These four Arizona Grazing Service District Offices became BLM Grazing District Offices in 1946, when the Grazing Service and the General Land Office were merged to form the Bureau of Land Management. The following is a list of the Grazing Service District Graziers.

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

When the Bureau of Land Management was created in 1946, its Arizona organization consisted of the Phoenix Land Office and the four Grazing District Offices at Kingman, Phoenix, Safford and St. George, Utah.

From 1946 to 1954, each of these Arizona BLM Offices reported to the BLM's new Regional Office for Region V, located in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

In the 1954, the BLM eliminated the Regional Office organization and replaced it with an Area Office/State Office organization. A BLM State Office was established in Phoenix with a State Supervisor who supervised the Arizona District Offices and reported to an Area Administrator for BLM's Area II, headquartered in Salt Lake City.

In 1961, BLM's Area Office/State Office organization was eliminated, and the State Supervisor position was retitled State Director who reported to the Director of the BLM in Washington, DC.

Since 1961, the BLM Arizona State Directors have supervised a group of Arizona District and subordinate offices which have been reorganized and renamed several times with the creation of Resource Area Offices, Field Offices, and National Monuments and National Conservation Areas.

In 1946, the BLM field office organization began with the Grazing District Offices in St. George, Kingman, Phoenix and Safford. The St. George, Phoenix, and Safford Offices have remained open continuously, although their names have changed several times.

The Kingman District Office was closed in 1953, but was reopened in 1966 as a Resource Area Office reporting to the Phoenix District.

A Yuma office was established in 1961, as the Department of the Interior's Lower Colorado River Land Use Office reporting to the Office of the Secretary of the Interior. It was reassigned to the BLM in 1967, to become the Yuma District Office.

In 1965, Resource Area Offices were established in each of the Arizona Strip, Phoenix, Safford and Yuma Districts. Most of the Resource Area Offices were co-located with the District Offices, but Resource Area Offices were opened in new locations at Kingman and Tucson and later at Lake Havasu City.

In a 1996 reorganization, the four District Offices and their Resource Area Offices were eliminated. The Arizona Strip, Phoenix, Safford and Yuma District Offices were re-designated as Field Offices, and the Resource Area Offices in Kingman, Tucson and Lake Havasu City were elevated to Field Office status reporting to the BLM's Arizona State Office.

The 2005 reorganization retained the Field Offices, but restored four District Offices to oversee the operations of the Field Offices and BLM National Monuments:

- an Arizona Strip District Office was reopened in St. George, UT to oversee operations of the Arizona Strip Field Office, and the Grand Canyon - Parashant National Monument and Vermilion Cliffs National Monument.
- the Phoenix District Office was reopened to oversee the operations of the Hassayampa and Lower Sonoran Field Offices which are co-located with the Phoenix District Office,
- a Colorado River District Office was established in Lake Havasu City to oversee operations of the Lake Havasu, Kingman, and Yuma Field Offices, and
- the Gila District Office was established in Sierra Vista to oversee the operations of the Safford and Tucson Field Offices.

The Arizona Strip Office originated as a Grazing Service District Office to administer Arizona Grazing District No. 1, the Hurricane District on the Arizona Strip. The Office was located in St. George, Utah because most of the livestock operators lived in Utah, and there were no towns of any size on the Arizona Strip. The Office became a BLM District Office in 1946, but was administered through the Arizona BLM organization.

Two Resource Areas - the Shivwits RA and the Vermillion RA - were established in the Arizona Strip District in 1965. They operated until 1996, when the District - Resource Area organization was eliminated and the Office was re-designated as the Arizona Strip Field Office.

In the 2005 reorganization, an Arizona Strip District Office was re-established in St. George, UT to supervise the Arizona Strip Field Office and the Grand Canyon-Parashant National Monument and Vermilion Cliffs National Monument which had been established on BLM lands in the District.

Phoenix was the location of the Grazing Service's Region 9 Office which was established in 1937 to administer grazing in Arizona. Arizona Grazing District No. 3, the Maricopa Grazing District, was administered out of the Phoenix Office. The Office became a BLM District in 1946. In 1953, after the closure of the Kingman District Office, the Phoenix District Office also took over the administration of Arizona Grazing District No. 2, the Kingman Grazing District.

In 1965, three Resource Areas were established in the Phoenix District: the Phoenix RA, the Lower Gila RA, and the Kingman RA. A Tucson Resource Area Office was opened in Tucson in 1992, reporting to the Phoenix District Manager. The Tucson RA was reassigned to the Safford District in 1994. In the 1996 reorganization, the Phoenix and Lower Gila Resource Area Offices were merged with the Phoenix District Office and the Phoenix Office was re-designated as the Phoenix Field Office.

In 2005, the three tiered organization was re-established in Arizona. The Phoenix Office was re-designated as the Phoenix District Office with two Field Offices - the Hassayampa Field Office and the Lower Sonoran Field Office - co-located with the Phoenix District Office. The Hassayampa FO is the former Phoenix RA and the Lower Sonoran FO is the former Lower Gila RA.

YUMA OFFICE

The Yuma Office was established in 1961, as the Department of the Interior's Lower Colorado River Land Use Office (LCRLUO) reporting to the Office of the Secretary of the Interior. It had a twofold mission - to resolve residential and commercial occupancy trespass problems on the Reclamation withdrawn lands along both the Arizona and California banks of the lower Colorado River, and to prepare a recreation land use plan for these lands.

In 1967, the Office was reassigned to the BLM to become the BLM's Yuma District Office. Its area of jurisdiction continued to be the Reclamation withdrawn lands along the River in both California and Arizona, but was expanded to include public lands in Yuma and Maricopa Counties that were reassigned to the Yuma District from the Phoenix District.

In 1973, two Resource Areas, the Yuma RA and the Havasu RA, were established in the Yuma District.

In the 1996 reorganization, the Yuma Resource Area Office was merged with the Yuma District Office to become the Yuma Field Office, and the Havasu Resource Area Office became the Lake Havasu Field Office.

In the 2005 reorganization, the Yuma Field Office became part of the new Colorado River District headquartered in Lake Havasu City.

Prior to 1946, the General Land Office and the Grazing Service were responsible for activities on the public domain lands in California.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE

A total of 17 Land Offices were established in California, but the three major long lasting Land Offices were at Los Angeles, San Francisco and Sacramento.

Los Angeles Land Office was opened in 1854 and the San Francisco and Sacramento Land Offices in 1857. The San Francisco Land Office was transferred to Oakland after the fire of 1906; then reopened in San Francisco in 1911; and eventually moved and consolidated with the Sacramento Land Office in 1927.

The Los Angeles Land Office operated from 1854 until 1961, when it was transferred to Riverside and combined into the newly established Riverside District and Land Office. The Riverside Land Office records and functions were finally consolidated into the Sacramento Land Office in 1972.

Other Land Offices were established and operated at the following locations: Benicia (1855 - 1856), Bodie (1878 - 1883), El Centro (1916 - 1924), Humboldt (1858 - 1899), Eureka (1858 - 1924), Independence (1887 - 1920), Maryvale (1858 - 1904), Oakland (1857 - 1906), Redding (1890 - 1912), Shasta (1870 - 1890), Stockton (1858 - 1905), Susanville (1871 - 1924), and Visalia (1858 - 1927).

In 1971, the Land Office organization was eliminated in the BLM, and the Land Office functions were assigned to State Office and District Office staffs.

GRAZING SERVICE

The Grazing Service created two Grazing Districts in California at Bishop and Susanville in the mid-1930s.

On November 1, 1934, Grazing Service Director Ferrington R. Carpenter chaired a meeting of stockmen in Bakersfield to establish the Mojave Grazing District. The District was established as "Mojave District No. 2." Sometime earlier, a Bodie Hills District had been established as Grazing District No. 1. However, on April 6, 1935, the two Districts were combined by Departmental Order into the Mojave District No. 1, with headquarters in Bishop, California. The office became the BLM's Bishop District in 1946. The District Office headquarters was moved to Bakersfield in 1954.

The Susanville District Grazing Office was established in 1939, to administer California Grazing District No. 2, the Honey Lake Grazing District.

During World War II, the Susanville Grazing Service District Office also took over the administration of over a million acres of public land in the western portion of Nevada Grazing District No. 2, the Pyramid District. Most of the livestock operators lived closer to Susanville than Winnemucca, Nevada, and, because of gas rationing, they were allowed to conduct their Grazing Service business with the Susanville Office. This arrangement was continued after the Susanville Office became a BLM District Office in 1946, and the Eagle Lake Field Office in Susanville and the Surprise Field Office in Cedarville, California still manages the livestock grazing on large areas of public lands in northwestern Nevada.

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

In 1946, when the General Land Office and the Grazing Service were merged to form the Bureau of Land Management, its field organization consisted of the Sacramento and Los Angeles Land Offices, and the Bishop and Susanville District offices which had their origins in Grazing District Offices established by the Grazing Service in the mid-1930's. These District and Land Offices reported to the BLM's new Region II Office in San Francisco.

In 1954, the BLM eliminated the Regional Office organization and replaced it with an Area Office/State Office organization. A BLM State Office was established in Sacramento, with a State Supervisor who reported to an Area Administrator for BLM's Area I, headquartered in Portland, Oregon.

In 1961, the Area Office organization was eliminated, and the State Supervisor position was retitled State Director who reported to the Director of the BLM in Washington, D. C.

In 1954, Grazing District No. 1, the Mohave District, moved its office from Bishop to Bakersfield to become the BLM's Bakersfield District Office.

In the 1950s, the BLM established Forestry Districts in Redding (1951), Sacramento (1954) and Ukiah (1958) to manage the public land forest and rangeland resources in those areas.

From the mid-1950s to 1961, an Assistant State Director's Office was located in Los Angeles to oversee the operations of the Los Angeles Land Office and a Southern Field Group composed of land and mineral examiners.

In 1961, the Southern California desert and coastal areas in San Bernardino, Riverside, Imperial and San Diego Counties were split off from the Bakersfield District and placed in a new District that was established at Riverside. This new District was combined with the Land Office that was moved from Los Angeles to form the Riverside District and Land Office. In 1972, it was renamed the Riverside District when the Land Office functions were moved and consolidated with the Sacramento Land Office. In 1980, the Riverside District was renamed the California Desert District.

In about 1965, several Resource Areas were established in each of the Susanville, Bakersfield, Redding, Sacramento, Ukiah and Riverside Districts. In 1966, the Sacramento District was relocated to Folsom, and renamed the Folsom District.

In 1980 and 1982 reorganizations, the Folsom and Redding Districts were eliminated. The Folsom and Redding Offices remained open as Resource Area Offices, with the Folsom Resource Area Office reporting to the Bakersfield District Office and the Redding Resource Area Office reporting to the Ukiah District Office.

In a 1996 reorganization, the Ukiah and Susanville District Offices were eliminated. However, the six Resource Area Offices in those two Districts - the Alturas RA, the Surprise RA at Cedarville, the Arcata RA, Clear Lake RA at Ukiah, the Redding RA, and the Eagle Lake RA at Susanville - continued in operation as the Northern California (NORCAL) Management Team reporting to the BLM's California State Office.

In a 1998 reorganization, the Alturas, Surprise, Arcata, Clear Lake, Redding and Eagle Lake Resource Area Offices were re-designated as Field Offices reporting to the State Director. The Field Office Managers continued to meet periodically as the NORCAL Management Team to discuss land management and administrative issues.

Also in 1998, the Bakersfield District Office organization was realigned. The Bakersfield District Office became the Bakersfield Field Office; the Caliente Resource Area was eliminated; and the Folsom, Bishop and Hollister Resource Area Offices were re-designated as Field Offices, which, along with the Bakersfield Field Office, reported directly to the BLM's California State Office.

The California Desert District continued to operate as a District Office to administer the California Desert Management Plan. However, the five Resource Areas which had been established in the California Desert District - at Palm Springs, El Centro, Barstow, Ridgecrest, and Needles - were re-designated as Field Offices, and continued to report to the District Office in Riverside.

A 2007 reorganization restored a three tier State Office - District Office - Field Office organization in California.

- A Northern California District Office was established in Redding to oversee the Redding, Alturas, Arcata, Eagle Lake, and Surprise Field Offices.
- A Central California District Office was established in Sacramento to oversee the Field Offices in Bakersfield, Bishop, and Hollister, and the Folsom Field Office which was renamed the Mother Lode Field Office and relocated to El Dorado Hills.
- The California Desert District Office in Riverside was relocated to Moreno Valley, and continued to oversee the Field Offices in Barstow, El Centro, Needles, Palm Springs and Ridgecrest.

In about 1970, the North, Central and South Resource Areas were renamed Siskyou, Four Rivers and Ishi Resource Areas, respectively.

SUSANVILLE OFFICE

The Susanville Office has its origin in the Grazing Service District Grazing Office established in 1939, to administer California Grazing District No. 2, the Honey Lake Grazing District.

During World War II, the Susanville Office also took over the administration of over a million acres of public land in the western portion of Nevada Grazing District No. 2, the Pyramid District. Most of the livestock operators lived closer to Susanville than Winnemucca, Nevada, and, because of gas rationing, they were allowed to conduct their Grazing Service business with the Susanville Office. This arrangement was continued after the Susanville Office became a BLM District Office in 1946, and the Eagle Lake Field Office in Susanville and the Surprise Field Office in Cedarville, California still manage large areas of public lands in northwestern Nevada.

In the mid-1960s, three Resource Area Offices were established in the Susanville District; the Pit River RA, the Surprise RA, and the Eagle Lake RA.

The Surprise Resource Area became a detached Resource Area in 1974 when the Resource Area Office was moved from Susanville to Cedarville. The Pit River RA was renamed the Alturas RA in about 1979, when the Resource Area Office was moved from Susanville to Alturas.

In the 1996 reorganization, the Susanville District Office was eliminated, and the Eagle Lake Resource Area Office remained as the only BLM office in Susanville. The Eagle Lake Resource Area Office, the Alturas Resource Area Office in Alturas, and the Surprise Resource Area Office in Cedarville became part of the Northern California (NORCAL) Management Team of Resource Area Offices reporting to the BLM California State Office.

In 1998, the three Resource Areas became the Eagle Lake Field Office, the Alturas Field Office and the Surprise Field Office, each reporting directly to the BLM California State Office.

When the three tiered organization was re-established in 2007, the Eagle Lake Field Office became part of the Northern California District, headquartered in Redding.

In 1954, the BLM created a Sacramento District Office by moving forestry and grazing personnel from the Regional Office in San Francisco to a new Sacramento Office. In 1966, the Sacramento District Office was moved to Folsom and renamed the Folsom District. At about the same time, the Northern Mother Lode Resource Area, the Southern Mother Lode Resource Area, and the Diablo Resource Area Offices were established in the new Folsom District.

In the 1980 reorganization, the Folsom District Office was abolished. The Northern Mother Lode RA and the Southern Mother Lode RA were combined and re-designated as the Folsom Resource Area Office reporting to the Bakersfield District Office. The Diablo Resource Area was relocated to Hollister and became the Hollister Resource Area reporting to the Bakersfield District Office.

In 1998, the Folsom Resource Area Office was re-designated as the Folsom Field Office reporting directly to the BLM California State Office. In 2010, the Folsom Field Office was moved to El Dorado Hills, and renamed the Mother Lode Field Office.

In 2007, when the three-tiered organization was re-established in California, a Central California District Office was established in Sacramento to oversee the Mother Lode, Bakersfield, Bishop, Hollister, and Ukiah Field Offices.

BAKERSFIELD OFFICE

On November 1, 1934, Grazing Service Director Ferrington R. Carpenter chaired a meeting of stockmen in Bakersfield to establish the Mojave Grazing District. The District was established as "Mojave District No. 2." Sometime earlier, a Bodie Hills District had been established as Grazing District No. 1. However, on April 6, 1935, the two Districts were combined by Departmental Order into the Mojave District No. 1, with headquarters in Bishop, California. The office became the BLM's Bishop District in 1946. The District Office headquarters was moved to Bakersfield in 1954.

The Bishop, Little Lake, and Bakersfield Resource Area Offices were established in the Bakersfield District in 1965. In 1970, the Bishop RA and the Little Lake RA were combined to become the Bishop/Little Lake RA, and in 1972, the Resource Area Office headquarters was moved from Bakersfield to Bishop to become the Bishop RA.

In 1974, the Inyokern RA was created out of the Bakersfield RA, and the remainder of the Bakersfield RA was renamed the Caliente RA.

In 1976, the Inyokern Resource Area Office was moved to Ridgecrest and renamed the Ridgecrest RA. In 1980, the Ridgecrest RA was reassigned from the Bakersfield District to the California Desert District.

In 1980, the Folsom and Hollister Resource Areas were added to the Bakersfield District, when the Folsom District was abolished.

In 1998, the Caliente Resource Area was abolished, and the Bakersfield, Bishop, Folsom and Hollister Offices each became Field Offices reporting directly to the BLM's California State Director.

In 2007 when the three tier organization was re-established in California, the Bakersfield Field Office became part of the Central California District headquartered in Sacramento.

BISHOP OFFICE

The Bishop Office originated as a Grazing Service District Office administering California Grazing District No. 1, the Mohave Grazing District. The Bishop Office became a BLM District Office in 1946. The office was closed in 1954 when the District Office headquarters was moved to Bakersfield, but was reopened as the Bakersfield District's Bishop Resource Area Office in 1972.

In 1998, the Bishop Office was re-designated as the Bishop Field Office reporting to the BLM's California State Office.

In 2007, when the three-tier organization was re-established in California, the Bishop Field Office became a part of the Central California District headquartered in Sacramento.

In 1998, the Hollister Resource Area Office became the Hollister Field Office reporting to the BLM's California State Office.

UKIAH OFFICE

The Ukiah District Office was established by BLM as a District Forestry Office in 1958. Three Resource Areas - the North Coast RA, the Mendocino RA, and the Clear Lake RA - were established in the Ukiah District in the mid-1960s.

In 1981, the North Coast Resource Area and part of the Mendocino Resource Area were merged, and the Resource Area Office was moved first to Eureka for a few months, and then to Arcata where it became the Arcata Resource Area Office.

The Redding Resource Area was added to the Ukiah District when the Redding District was merged with the Ukiah District in 1982.

In the 1996 reorganization, the Ukiah District Office was eliminated, and the Clear Lake, Arcata and Redding Resource Area Offices became part of the Northern California (NORCAL) Management Team of Resource Area Offices reporting to the BLM California State Office. The Clear Lake Resource Area Office remained as the only BLM office in Ukiah.

In 1998, the three Resource Areas became the Clear Lake Field Office (in Ukiah), the Arcata Field Office and the Redding Field Office.

Prior to 1946, the General Land Office and the Grazing Service were responsible for activities on the public domain lands in Colorado.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE

A total of 16 Land Offices were established in Colorado, but the two principal Land Offices were at Denver and Pueblo. The Denver Land Office was opened in 1864 and the Pueblo Land Office in 1871.

Other Land Offices were opened and operated at the following locations: Akron (1890 - 1904), Del Norte (1850 - 1924), Durango (1882 - 1925), Glenwood Springs (1884 - 1927), Golden City (1863 - 1864), Hugo (1890 - 1922), Lamar (1887 - 1924), Leadville (1879 - 1924), Sterling (1890 - 1924), Central City (1868 - 1893), Fair Play (1867 - 1879), Lake City (1877 - 1888), Montrose (1888 - 1925), and Gunnison (1883 - 1906).

When BLM was formed in 1946, Land Office functions had been consolidated into the Denver and Pueblo Land Offices. The Pueblo Land Office was consolidated into the Denver Land Office in 1950.

GRAZING SERVICE

The Grazing Service created eight Grazing Districts in Colorado in the late 1930s. Each Grazing District was headed by a District Grazier with clerical support and a Grazing Advisory Board made up of local ranchers. These Grazing Districts became BLM Districts after 1946 and many of the District Graziers became the first BLM District Managers. These eight Grazing Districts were:

District No. 1, the Meeker District, with office in Meeker, which was combined into the BLM's Craig District in 1954.

District No. 2, the Summit District, with office in Meeker, then Craig, then Denver, then Glenwood Springs, and was finally divided and combined into the BLM's Grand Junction, Craig and Canon City Districts in 1973.

District No. 3, the Ouray District, with office at Montrose and later became a part of the BLM's Montrose District.

District No. 4, the Dolores District, with office in Montrose, then Durango, and finally combined into the BLM's Montrose District in 1966.

District No. 5, the Royal Gorge District, with office in Canon City became a part of BLM's Canon City District.

District No. 6, the Yampa District, with office in Meeker and then included in BLM's Craig District in 1947.

District No. 7, the Rifle District, with office in Grand Junction and became a part of BLM's Grand Junction District.

District No. 8, the San Luis District, established in 1941 by split of Ouray District, with office in Alamosa, and subsequently combined with the BLM's Canon City District.

Each of the District Graziers reported directly to a Grazing Service Regional Grazier in the Grazing Service's Region 8 Office in Grand Junction, Colorado.

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

When the BLM was established in 1946, there were Grazing Service District Offices in Grand Junction, Montrose, Meeker, Durango, Craig and Canon City which became BLM District Offices. BLM added a Denver District Office in 1947.

In 1954, the Meeker District was merged into the Craig District, but the Meeker Office remained open as a Sub-Office, later a Resource Area Office, reporting to the Craig District Office.

In a 1966 reorganization, the Denver District Office was closed and moved to Glenwood Springs; and the Durango District was consolidated with the Montrose District. At about the same time, several Resource Areas were created within each of the five remaining Districts - Canon City, Grand Junction, Craig, Montrose, and Glenwood Springs.

In 1973, the Glenwood Springs District was abolished and its lands were divided up and reassigned to the Canon City, Craig and Grand Junction Districts. The Meeker, Durango and Glenwood Springs Offices remained open as Resource Area Offices reporting to the Craig, Montrose, and Grand Junction District Offices.

In 1995, the Canon City District began a "Service First" pilot project with the U. S. Forest Service to share offices and operations. In Canon City the BLM and the Forest Service shared an office. In Alamosa, the San Luis Resource Area Office and two National Forest Ranger District Offices ceased to exist as separate BLM and Forest Service Offices. The BLM and the Forest Service merged their offices, personnel, equipment and land management operations on a trial basis to manage BLM and National Forest Lands in the San Luis Valley area of south central Colorado.

By 2000, this type of BLM/Forest Service merger of operations had been expanded to the offices in the Montrose District in southwestern Colorado. At the same time, Public Lands Centers jointly operated by the BLM and the Forest Service were established in Monte Vista and Delores to serve as information centers for the public using the public lands.

In the late 1990s, the BLM eliminated the District Office/Resource Area Office organization, and each District Office and detached Resource Area Office in Colorado was re-designated as a Field Office reporting directly to the BLM Colorado State Office in Denver.

In the 2008 reorganization, the BLM restored the three tier State Office/District Office/Field Office organization in Colorado by reestablishing District Offices in Canon City, Grand Junction and Montrose to supervise groups of Field Offices.

A Front Range District Office was established in Canon City to oversee Field Offices in Canon City, Del Norte, Saguache, and La Jara, and the San Luis Valley Public Lands Office in Monte Vista, most of which were co-located with Forest Service Offices.

A Northwest District Office was established in Grand Junction to oversee Field Offices in Grand Junction, Silt, Craig, Meeker, and Kremmling.

A Southwest District Office was established in Montrose to oversee Field Offices in Montrose, Gunnison, Pagosa Springs, and Bayfield; the Dolores Public Lands Center in Dolores; and the San Juan Public Lands Center in Durango, most of which were co-located with Forest Service Offices.

In 2011, the BLM separated their Field Offices from the Forest Service. In both the Front Range and Southwest District, several of the Field Offices were consolidated into a single Field Office.

In the Front Range District, the Del Norte, La Jara and Saguache Field Offices and the San Luis Public Lands Center were consolidated into a San Luis Valley Field Office, located in Saguache, and reporting to the Front Range District Office in Canon City.

In the Southwest District, the Pagosa and Columbine Field Offices and the Dolores and San Juan Public Lands Centers were combined into the Tres Rios Field Office located in Dolores and reporting to the Southwest District Office in Montrose.

Royal Gorge Field Office Canon City, CO
San Luis Valley Field Office Saguache, CO

The BLM created the Canon City District in 1947, to manage the Grazing Service's Colorado Grazing Districts Nos. 5 and 8, the Royal Gorge and San Luis Grazing Districts. The BLM Canon City District also included a portion of the original Grazing District No. 2, which in 1947 had been in the BLM's Denver District, was moved to the Glenwood Springs District for the 1966 to 1973 period, before being merged into the Canon City District in 1973.

In 1966, the Canon City District created two Resource Areas: the Royal Gorge RA and the San Luis RA with offices in Canon City. Within a year, the San Luis Resource Area Office was relocated to Alamosa, Colorado. In a 1973 reorganization, the Northeast Resource Area was added to the Canon City District from the Glenwood Springs District which had been eliminated.

The Northeast Resource Area Office was located in the Denver area from 1966 to 1992. It was part of the Glenwood Springs District from 1966 to 1973, and part of the Canon City District from 1973 to 1992. It was based first in Golden, later in Wheatridge, and finally in the Denver Service Center, before being merged into the Royal Gorge Resource Area in 1992.

In 1995, the Canon City District began a pilot project with the U. S. Forest Service to share offices and operations. In Canon City the BLM and the Forest Service shared an office. In Alamosa, the San Luis Resource Area Office and two National Forest Ranger District Offices ceased to exist as separate BLM and Forest Service Offices. The BLM and the Forest Service merged their offices, personnel, equipment and land management operations on a trial basis to manage BLM and National Forest Lands in the San Luis Valley area of south central Colorado.

In the 2000 reorganization, the Canon City District office was re-designated as the Royal Gorge Field Office reporting directly to the BLM's Colorado State Office. The La Jara Field Office, the Saguache Field Office, and the Del Norte Field Offices which had been part of the Canon City District, also began reporting directly to the BLM Colorado State Office

In a 2009 reorganization, a Front Range District Office was re-established in Canon City to oversee the operations of the Royal Gorge Field Office at Canon City, the Del Norte Field Office, the Saguache Field Office, the La Jara Field Office, and the San Luis Valley Public Lands Center at Monte Vista.

In the 2011 reorganization, the Del Norte, Saguache, and La Jara Field Offices and the San Luis Valley Public Lands Center were consolidated into a San Luis Valley Field Office located at Saguache and reporting to the Front Range District Office in Canon City.

In the San Luis Valley area, the BLM administered public lands in the San Luis Resource Area and the adjacent National Forest lands of the Rio Grande National Forest were combined into three new land management units that were established in the western, northern and southern portions of the San Luis Valley.

In 1998, the former BLM San Luis Resource Area Manager managed the western unit, and two Forest Service District Rangers managed the northern and southern units. The San Luis Resource Area Office was later re-designated as the San Luis Field Office.

In a 2000 reorganization, the Grand Junction District Office and the Glenwood Springs Resource Area Offices became the Grand Junction Field Office and the Glenwood Springs Field Offices, each reporting directly to the Colorado State Office.

In the 2008 reorganization, a Northwest District Office was re-established in Grand Junction to oversee the operations of the Grand Junction Field Office and the Glenwood Springs Field Office. At that time, the Little Snake Field Office at Craig, the White River Field Office at Meeker, and the Kremmling Field Office at Kremmling were added to the Northwest District.

The Glenwood Springs Office had its origin in the BLM's Denver District Office that was established in Denver in 1947. In 1966, the Denver District Office was closed and moved to Glenwood Springs. At about the same time, five Resource Areas were established in the Glenwood Springs District: the Northeast RA, the North Park RA, the Middle Park RA, the Eagle RA, and the Glenwood Springs RA.

The Glenwood Springs District only lasted 7 years; it was abolished in 1973. The lands in the Northeast RA were reassigned to the Canon City District; the lands in the North Park RA and Middle Park RA were reassigned to the Craig District to become that District's new Kremmling RA; and the lands in the Glenwood Springs RA and the Eagle RA were reassigned to the Grand Junction District to become that District's new Glenwood Resource Area.

In 1965, the Craig District established three Resource Areas: the North, Middle and South Resource Areas which in about 1968 were renamed the Little Snake, Yampa and White River Resource Areas.

The 1973 District reorganization realigned the Craig District into three different Resource Areas: the Little Snake RA at Craig, the White River RA at Meeker, and the Kremmling RA at Kremmling. The Kremmling RA was created on lands added to the Craig District from the Glenwood Springs District. These actions resulted in the elimination of the Yampa RA in the Craig District and the Middle Park RA and North Park RA from the former Glenwood Springs District.

The Montrose Office was established as a Grazing Service office to manage Colorado Grazing District No. 3, the Ouray Grazing District. The office became a BLM District Office in 1946. In 1966, the lands in the old Dolores Grazing District, Colorado Grazing District No. 4, were added to the Montrose District when the Durango District Office was abolished.

Originally in 1965, the Montrose District had five Resource Areas: the San Juan RA, the Gunnison Basin RA, the Montrose RA, the Delta RA and the San Miguel RA. Reorganizations in 1973 and 1975 realigned the District into three RAs: the Uncompahgre RA in Montrose, Gunnison RA in Gunnison, and the San Juan RA in Durango. The Delta RA, Montrose RA and the San Miguel RA were eliminated.

In about 2000, there was a major reorganization of the BLM offices in southwestern Colorado. The BLM eliminated the District Office/Resource Area Office organization, and replaced it with Field Offices reporting directly to the Colorado State Office. Also the BLM and the Forest Service had begun sharing Offices, equipment, personnel and management responsibilities in southwestern Colorado in the same fashion as was being done in the "Service First" pilot program which had been started in the Canon City District in 1995.

The Montrose District Office became the Uncompahgre Field Office, the Gunnison Basin Resource Area Office became the Gunnison Field Office, and the San Juan Resource Area Office in Durango became the San Juan Public Lands Center. The BLM also joined the Forest Service in two new joint BLM/Forest Service Field Offices - the Columbine Field Office in Bayfield, the Pagosa Field Office in Pagosa Springs, and a San Juan Public Lands Center in Durango, and a Dolores Public Lands Office in Delores.

In 2008, the BLM restored the three tiered State Office/District Office/ Field Office organization in Colorado, and established the Southwest District Office in Montrose to oversee the operations of the Uncompahgre and Gunnison Field Offices, and the complex of joint BLM/Forest Service offices in the Durango area.

In 2011, the BLM discontinued the joint BLM/Forest Service Field Offices, and consolidated the Columbine and Pagosa Field Offices, and the San Juan Public Lands Center and the Dolores Public Lands Office into a Tres Rios Field Office in Dolores.

DOLORES OFFICE

The Dolores office was originally established in 2001 as the Mancos/Dolores Field Office. It is a joint BLM/Forest Service facility that was renamed the Dolores Public Lands Office in 2006. It houses both a San Juan National Forest Office and the BLM's Tres Rios Field Office. The Tres Rios Field Office was created in 2011 with the merger of the BLM components of the former Columbine and Pagosa Field Offices with the BLM's responsibilities at the Dolores Public Lands Office. The Tres Rios Field Office also oversees the administration of the Anasazi Heritage Center/Canyons of the Ancients National Monument.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE

The first Land Offices were established by Congress at the end of the 18th Century to facilitate the disposal of lands in the Northwest Territory (that area North and West of the Ohio River). In 1812, Congress created the General Land Office as the agency to administer the disposal of the federal public domain lands. Land Offices were established in the new Territories west of the Appalachian Mountains as the new Nation began to expand and settle its western frontier. Over a 170 year period, more than 400 Land Offices were opened in the southern and western Territories and States.

The only States which did not have Land Offices were:

- the original 13 States,
- West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee which were originally part of Virginia and North Carolina, two of the original 13 States,
- Maine which was originally part of Massachusetts, one of the original 13 States,
- Texas, which joined the Nation as a Republic and kept its lands, and
- Hawaii, which was mostly privately owned land when it became a Territory, and later a State.

Land Offices were opened in areas where settlement was occurring. When most of the public domain land in an area was appropriated under the Homestead Act or other settlement laws, the Land Office would relocate to a new area where settlement was beginning, taking the land records with it. When settlement was largely finished in a State, the Land Office records from that State were transferred to a permanent location in the General Land Office in Washington, DC.

In addition to maintaining the public land records and processing land disposals, the General Land Office had two other important functions:

- The GLO also managed the cadastral land surveying program which established the land boundaries which were the basis for the land patents issued by General Land Office, and
- when the Oregon and California (O&C) Revested Lands Administration was created by Congress in 1937 to manage the timbered public lands in western Oregon, this O&C Revested Lands Administration was assigned to the General Land Office.

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

In 1946, when the General Land Office was merged with the Grazing Service to form the Bureau of Land Management, the GLO organization consisted of a large Washington DC Office, 20 Land Offices in 11 western States and the Territory of Alaska, and the O&C Revested Lands Administration in western Oregon. The O&C Revested Lands Administration was reassigned to the BLM's new Region I Office in Portland, Oregon. The Land Offices in the western States continued to report to the GLO Division of the BLM's Washington Office until 1954, when they became part of the State Office organizations which BLM created in the 12 Western States.

The BLM's Eastern States Office (ESO) was established in 1954 to manage the BLM's responsibilities for the scattered parcels and blocks of public lands in the states east of the Mississippi River, and to administer the Eastern States Land Office, which included the public land records from the former Land Offices in the mid-western and southern states. The Eastern States Land Office role was the major part of early ESO operations.

State Supervisors/State Directors headed ESO operations from 1954 to 1967. The Eastern States Land Office Manager was placed in charge of the Eastern States Office from 1967 until 1972, when the State Director position was reestablished.

Originally located in the District of Columbia, the Eastern States Office headquarters was moved to Silver Springs, Maryland in 1963, and to Alexandria, Virginia in about 1973. It is now located in Springfield, Virginia.

Former offices administered by the Eastern States Office include:

Eastern States Land Office, Washington, DC (1954 - 1972)
Russellville Office in Russellville, Arkansas (1954 - 1960)
St. Paul Local Office in St. Paul, Minnesota (1960 - 1964)

In 1964, the Office was relocated to Duluth, Minnesota and renamed the Lake States Office. It continued to report to the Montana State Office until 1973, when it became part of the Eastern States organization.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE

The General Land Office opened the first Land Office in Idaho at Boise in 1868. It operated until 1927, when the functions were consolidated with the Blackfoot Land Office. The Blackfoot Land Office had been established in 1886. The Coeur d'Alene Land Office had been established for northern Idaho in 1885. In 1948, the Blackfoot and the Coeur d'Alene Land Offices were closed, moved, merged and reopened as the Boise Land Office.

Other Land Offices in Idaho were operated for shorter periods at Hailey (1883 - 1924), Lewiston (1871 - 1924), Oneida (1876), and Oxford (1879 - 1883).

In 1971, the Land Office organization was eliminated, and the Land Office functions were assigned to BLM State and District Offices.

GRAZING SERVICE

The Grazing Service created five Grazing Districts in Idaho in the mid-1930s. Each Grazing District was headed by a District Grazier with clerical support and a Grazing Advisory Board made up of local ranchers. These Grazing Districts were:

- District No. 1, the Owyhee District, with office in Boise,
- District No. 2, the Twin Falls District, with office in Burley,
- District No. 3, the Lost River District, with office in Pocatello, later moved to Idaho Falls,
- District No. 4, the Lemhi District, with office in Salmon, and
- District No. 5, the Wood River District, with office in Shoshone.

Each of these Idaho District Graziers reported to a Grazing Service Regional Director in the Grazing Service Regional 5 Office in Boise. This office was moved to Pocatello, Idaho in 1939, and back to Boise in 1942.

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

The five Grazing Service District Offices became the BLM's Boise, Burley, Idaho Falls, Salmon and Shoshone District Offices in 1946.

From 1946 to 1954, each of these BLM District Offices reported to the BLM's new Regional Office for Region I located in Portland, Oregon. In 1954, the BLM replaced its Regional Office organization with an Area Office - State Office organization. A BLM State Office was established in Boise with a State Supervisor who supervised the Idaho District Offices, and who reported to an Area Administrator for BLM's Area II Office headquartered in Salt Lake City, Utah.

In 1961, the BLM's Area Office organization was eliminated and the State Supervisor position was retitled State Director who reported directly to the Director of the BLM in Washington, D.C.

Beginning in about 1947, the BLM initiated a timber sale program in northern Idaho from a project office that was first located in Spokane, Washington and later in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho. The Coeur d'Alene office was re-designated as the BLM's Coeur d'Alene District Office in 1962.

In 1955, Burley District Manager William L. Mathews initiated the concept of subdividing the Burley District into three Areas, later called Resource Areas, each managed by an Area Manager reporting to the District Manager. In 1957, four Area Offices were also established in the Boise District. By 1962, Area Offices were established in the Shoshone, Idaho Falls and Salmon Districts. In 1965, the BLM officially adopted the Resource Area Office concept and began to implement it in the other States. The District Office/Resource Area Office organization operated for 40 years in Idaho.

In 1996, the six Idaho District Offices were reorganized into three new Districts:

- Boise District was renamed the Lower Snake River District.
- Idaho Falls, Burley and Shoshone Districts were combined and renamed the Upper Snake River District, with the District Office being located at Idaho Falls.
- the Coeur d'Alene and Salmon Districts were combined and renamed the Upper Columbia - Salmon Clearwater District with the District Office being located at Coeur d'Alene.

Most of the Resource Areas remained in operation for two more years until 1998, when they were re-designated as Field Offices reporting to the District Offices.

In the 2004 reorganization, some of the original Districts and District names were restored:

- Lower Snake River District Office became the Boise District Office, which continued to supervise the Bruneau, Four Rivers, and Owyhee Field Offices.
- Upper Snake River District Office became the Idaho Falls District Office, which continued to supervise the Challis, Pocatello, Salmon and Upper Snake Field Offices.
- Upper Columbia - Clearwater District Office became the Coeur d'Alene District Office, which continued to supervise the Coeur d'Alene and Cottonwood Field Offices.
- A new Twin Falls District Office was established in Twin Falls to supervise the Burley, Jarbidge, and Shoshone Field Offices.

In 1938, a Grazing Service District Office was created in Boise to administer Idaho Grazing District No. 1, the Owyhee Grazing District. That Office became a BLM District Office in 1946.

Four Resource Area (RA) Offices were created in the Boise District in 1957 - the Cascade RA, the Owyhee RA, the Sunnyside RA which was soon renamed the Bruneau RA, and the Jarbidge RA. These Resource Area Offices were co-located with the Boise District Office. The Jarbidge RA was physically moved to Twin Falls in 1992, but continued to report the Boise Office until 2004.

The Boise District and its four Resource Areas operated for 50 years until 1996, when the Boise District was renamed the Lower Snake River District. In 1998, the four Resource Area Offices were renamed the Cascade, Owyhee, Bruneau, and Jarbidge Field Offices but continued to report to the Lower Snake River District Office in Boise.

In 2004, the Lower Snake River District was renamed back to the Boise District. The Cascade Field Office was renamed the Four Rivers Field Office. The Four Rivers, Owyhee and Bruneau Field Offices continued to report to the Boise District Office. The Jarbidge Field Office was reassigned to the new Twin Falls District. The Owyhee Field Office was relocated to Marsing, ID in 2004.

The Four Rivers Field Office also administers the Morey Nelson Snake River Birds of Prey National Conservation Area.

SALMON OFFICE

The Salmon office was originally established in about 1940, as a Grazing Service District Office to administer Idaho Grazing District No. 4, the Lemhi Grazing District. In 1946, it became a BLM District Office.

In 1958, the Lemhi Area and the Challis-Pahsimeroi Area were established in the Salmon District. In 1967, the Challis - Pahsimeroi Area was divided into the Challis - Mackey Area and the Pahsimeroi Area. In 1985, the Salmon District was realigned into two Resource Areas, the Lemhi and the Challis Resource Areas.

In 1996, the Salmon District was combined with the Coeur d'Alene District to form the Upper Columbia - Salmon Clearwater District with District Office in Coeur d'Alene. The Coeur d'Alene District Manager supervised both the Coeur d'Alene and the Salmon District Offices. The Lemhi and Challis Resource Area Offices remained in operation in the Salmon District.

In 1998, the Salmon District Office was eliminated. The Lemhi and Challis Resource Area Offices were re-designated as the Lemhi Field Office and the Challis Field Office, both located in Salmon and reporting to the Upper Columbia - Salmon Clearwater District Office in Coeur d'Alene. In 1999, the Lemhi Field Office was renamed the Salmon Field Office. A Challis Field Station was established in Challis, and reported to the Challis Field Office in Salmon.

In 2004, the Salmon and Challis Field Offices were transferred from the Upper Columbia - Salmon Clearwater District to the new Idaho Falls District headquartered in Idaho Falls.

COEUR d' ALENE OFFICES

Cottonwood Field Office Cottonwood, ID

Beginning in about 1947, the BLM initiated a timber sale program in northern Idaho that was administered from project offices that were first located in Spokane, Washington and later in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho.

The Coeur d'Alene Office was opened as a project office when the BLM Idaho State Office was established in 1954. It was re-designated as the Coeur d'Alene District Office in 1962.

The Coeur d'Alene District was divided into a North Unit and a South Unit which later became the Emerald Empire Resource Area and the Chief Joseph Resource Areas. The Chief Joseph RA Office was moved to Cottonwood in 1974, and was renamed the Cottonwood Resource Area in 1978.

In a 1996 reorganization, the Coeur d'Alene District and the Salmon Districts were combined into a new Upper Columbia - Salmon Clearwater District headquartered in Coeur d'Alene.

In 1998, the Emerald Empire Resource Area Office was merged with the Coeur d'Alene District Office to become the Coeur d'Alene Field Office, and the Cottonwood Resource Area became the Cottonwood Field Office. Both Field Offices reported to the newly established Upper Columbia - Salmon Clearwater District Office in Coeur d'Alene.

In the 2004 reorganization, the Upper Columbia - Salmon Clearwater District Office was re-designated as the Coeur d' Alene District Office overseeing the Coeur d'Alene Field Office and the Cottonwood Field Office. The Salmon and Challis Field Offices were reassigned to the new Idaho Falls District.

BURLEY OFFICE

The Burley Office opened in 1938 as a Grazing Service District Office administering Idaho Grazing District No. 2, the Twin Falls Grazing District. It became a BLM District Office in 1946.

In 1955, Burley District Manager William Mathews initiated the Area Office concept, dividing the Burley District into three Areas each managed by an Area Manager reporting to the District Manager. This Area Office concept, later called Resource Area Offices, was extended to the other Idaho Districts, and in 1965, it was officially adopted by the BLM for implementation in the other States.

The first three Area Offices established in 1955 in the Burley District were the Magic, Raft River and Deep Creek Areas. In 1960, a fourth Resource Area, the Soda Springs Resource Area, was established in the Burley District. In 1972, the Soda Springs Resource Area was reassigned to the Idaho Falls District.

In 1982, the Magic and the Raft River Resource Areas were combined and renamed the Snake River Resource Area.

In 1984, the Deep Creek Resource Area Office was moved to Malad, but continued to report to the Burley District Office. In 1994, the Deep Creek Resource Area Office was renamed the Malad Resource Area Office. It continued to report to the Burley District Office until 1997, when it began reporting to the Pocatello Field Office, which was part of the Idaho Falls District.

In the 1996 reorganization, the Burley, Shoshone and Idaho Falls Districts were combined into the Upper Snake River District with the District Office located in Idaho Falls.

In 1998, the Snake River Resource Area Office was merged with the Burley District Office to become the Burley Field Office reporting to the Upper Snake River District Office in Idaho Falls.

Prior to 1946, the General Land Office and the Grazing Service were responsible for activities on the public domain land in Montana, North Dakota and South Dakota.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE

A total of 10 Land Offices were established in Montana beginning with the opening of the Helena Land Office in 1867. Other Land Offices were opened in Bozeman (1874), Miles City (1880), Lewistown (1890), Missoula (1891), Kalispel (1897), Great Falls (1902), Billings (1906), Glasgow (1907), and Havre (1910).

All of the Montana Land Offices, except Great Falls and Billings, were closed by 1924, and the Land Office records and functions were consolidated into the Billings and Great Falls Land Offices. In 1946, the Billings and Great Falls Land Offices became organizational units in the new Bureau of Land Management.

Nearly 30 Land Offices were opened in the Dakota Territories, beginning with the Yankton Land Office in 1872. Other Land Offices were opened in Sioux Falls (1873), Fargo (1874), Deadwood (1877), Grand Forks (1880), Watertown (1880), Aberdeen (1882), Pierre (1890), Minot (1891), Dickenson (1904), Williston (1906), and Belle Fourche (1909).

In 1949, the last two Dakota Land Offices at Bismark, North Dakota and Pierre, South Dakota were closed and the Dakota land records were merged into the Billings Land Office in Montana. At the same time, the Great Falls Land Office in Montana was also closed and merged with the Billings Land Office.

GRAZING SERVICE

Six Grazing Districts were created in Montana in the mid-1930's. Each Grazing District Office was headed by a District Grazier with clerical support and a Grazing Advisory Board. These Grazing Districts were:

District No. 1, the Malta District, with office in Malta,
District No. 2, the Musselshell (later the Big Dry) District, with office in Miles City,
District No. 3, the Mizpah (later the Powder River) District, with office in Miles City,
District No. 4, the Bridger District, with office in Billings,
District No. 5, the Butte District, with office in Whitehall, and District No. 6, the Roundup District, with office in Lewistown.

Each of the Montana District Graziers reported to a Grazing Service Regional Director located in Billings.

These six Montana Grazing Service District Offices became BLM District Offices in 1946, when the Grazing Service and the General Land Office merged to form the Bureau of Land Management. The Grazing Service District Graziers were:

Malta Grazing District No. 1 District Graziers at Malta

LeRoy L. Merryfield	1939 - 1941
Paul H. Crouter	1941 - 1946

Musselshell Grazing District No. 2 District Graziers at Miles City

Paul H. Crouter	1939 - 1941
Fred Benson	1941 - 1943
Alva C. Gould	1943 - 1946

No Grazing Service Grazing Districts were established in North or South Dakota.

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

When the Bureau of Land Management was created in 1946, its Montana organization consisted of the Billings and Great Falls Land Offices and five Grazing District Offices in Billings, Whitehall, Lewistown, Malta and Miles City.

From 1947 to 1954, these District Grazing offices reported to a BLM Regional Administrator in BLM's new Region III Office located in Billings.

In a 1954 Area Office/State Office reorganization, a BLM Montana State office was established in Billings with a State Supervisor who supervised the Montana District Offices, and reported to an Area Administrator for BLM's Area III Office, headquartered in Denver, Colorado.

In 1961, the BLM's Area Office organization was eliminated, and the State Supervisor position was retitled State Director, who reported to the Director of the BLM in Washington, DC.

For over 50 years, these State Directors have supervised a group of subordinate offices in Montana, North Dakota and South Dakota. There have been frequent changes in the locations, names and organizations of these offices.

Montana - North Dakota- South Dakota Field Organization

The BLM Montana State Office is responsible for management of the federal public lands in the States of Montana, North Dakota and South Dakota.

During the early days of the BLM, the public lands in North and South Dakota were administered out of the Miles City District Office. Later, District Offices were established in Dickinson, North Dakota in 1976, and in Belle Fourche, South Dakota in 1968.

In 1960, the Montana BLM State Office was assigned the responsibility for administering the federal public lands on unsurveyed islands in lakes in Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Michigan. An office was established in St. Paul, Minnesota, later relocated to Duluth, Minnesota, to administer this program. The program was turned over to the Eastern States Office in 1973.

The original BLM Montana Offices had their origins as Grazing Service District Offices that became BLM District Offices in 1946.

District No. 1, the Malta District, with office in Malta became the BLM Malta District.

District No. 2, the Musselshell (later the Big Dry) District, with office in Miles City, was later in the BLM Miles City District.

District No. 3, the Mizpah (later the Powder River) District, with office in Miles City, was later included in the Miles City District.

District No. 4, the Bridger District, with office in Billings, later was first administered by BLM from Worland, Wyoming, then Lewistown, then Bridger, and finally returned to Billings in 1961.

District No. 5, the Butte District, with office in Whitehall later, became part of the BLM Butte District.

District No. 6, the Roundup District, with office in Lewistown, later became part of the BLM Lewistown District.

Over the years, there have been a number of reorganizations, consolidations, and re-designations of the BLM District Offices in Montana, and also in the Resource Area Offices that were created within the Districts in the mid-1960s.

1946 - 1961

In 1946, the BLM had five Grazing District Offices in Billings, Whitehall, Lewistown, Malta, and Miles City that had their origins as Grazing Service District Offices.

During the following 15 years, several changes occurred in Montana District organization:

- The Billings District's range management responsibilities were first reassigned in 1948 to the Worland District Office in Wyoming; later, in 1958, to a Bridger District Office that was established in Bridger, Montana; and finally, in 1961, back to a new Billings District Office.

- The Whitehall District Office was relocated in 1955 to become the Dillon District Office.
- A new District Office was established in Missoula in 1957.

1961 - 1975

From 1961 to 1975, there were six District Offices in Montana: Billings, Dillon, Malta, Lewistown, Missoula and Miles City. Two or three Resource Areas were created in each District in about 1965. By 1975, a North Dakota Project Office had also been established in Dickinson, North Dakota. From 1960 to 1973, a Lakes Project Office in St Paul, later relocated to Duluth, Minnesota, also reported to the Montana State Director.

1976 - 1998

In a 1976 reorganization, the number of District Offices was reduced to four: Butte, Lewistown, and Miles City in Montana, and Dickinson in North Dakota. The Dillon and Missoula Districts were merged to become a new District with headquarters at Butte. The Malta District and the Billings District were merged into the Lewistown District. The Dillon, Missoula, Malta and Billings Offices remained open as Resource Area Offices. The Dickinson District was established to administer the public lands in North Dakota.

In 1983, Resource Area Offices were opened in Havre, Glasgow and Great Falls, and the Billings Resource Area Office was reassigned from the Lewistown District to the Miles City District.

1998 - 2009

In 1998, the three tiered State/District/Resource Area Office organization was abolished. The District Offices and most of the detached Resource Area Offices were re-designated as Field Offices, each reporting to the State Office. The Resource Area Offices in Havre and Glasgow were re-designated as Field Stations reporting to the Lewistown and Malta Field Offices, respectively. The Resource Area Offices that were co-located with the District Offices were eliminated.

2009 -

In 2009, the BLM went back to a three tiered State Office/District Office/Field Office organization. District Offices were re-established in Butte, Great Falls, and Miles City to supervise groups of Field Offices and National Monuments.

Butte Field Office Butte, MT

Dillon Field Office Dillon, MT

Missoula Field Office Missoula, MT

The Butte District was created in 1976 by the merger of the lands that had formerly been part of the Whitehall, Dillon and Missoula Districts. Three Resource Areas, the Headwaters, Dillon and Garnet RAs, were also created in the Butte District in 1976.

In the 1998 reorganization, the Butte District Office became the Butte Field Office, and the Dillon and Garnet Resource Area Offices became the Dillon and Missoula Field Offices, each reporting directly to the BLM Montana State Office. The Headwaters Resource Area was eliminated.

In the 2009 reorganization, the Western Montana District Office was established in Butte to oversee the operations of the Butte, Dillon and Missoula Field Offices.

The Lewistown Office was originally established in 1942 as a Grazing Service District Office administering Montana Grazing District No. 6, the Roundup District Grazing District. The office became a BLM District Office in 1946. The Lewistown District Office also administered Montana Grazing District No. 4, the Bridger Grazing District for a brief period, 1954 - 1958 out of a sub-office in Bridger.

Three Resource Areas, the Judith River RA, the Black Butte RA and the Roundup RA, were established in 1965 in the Lewistown District. In 1969, these three Resource Areas were realigned into two Resource Areas named the Judith River RA and the Musselshell RA.

In the 1976 reorganization:

- the Judith River and the Musselshell RAs were combined into the Judith RA:
- three Resource Areas were added from the Malta District which was abolished and merged into the Lewistown District - these three Resource Areas were the Phillips RA in Malta, the Valley RA in Glasgow, and the Havre RA in Havre, which had been the Glacier - Blaine RA in the old Malta District, and
- the Billings Resource Area was added from the Billings District which was merged into the Lewistown District.

In 1983, another Resource Area was added to the Lewistown District when the Great Falls Resource Area Office was established in Great Falls as the result of the BLM - MMS merger of on-shore minerals activities. At the same time, the Billings Resource Area was reassigned from the Lewistown District to the Miles City District to help balance the workload between the Montana District Offices.

In the 1998 reorganization:

- the Judith Resource Area Office was merged with the Lewistown District Office which was re-designated as the Lewistown Field Office,
- the Great Falls and Phillips Resource Area Offices became the Great Falls and Malta Field Offices, and
- the Havre and Valley Resource Area Offices in Havre became the Havre Field Station reporting to the Lewistown Field Office, and the Glasgow Field Station reporting to the new Malta Field Office.

The Upper Missouri River Breaks National Monument was created by Presidential Proclamation on January 17, 2001 on a 149 mile stretch of the Upper Missouri River in the Lewistown Field Office area. The National Monument reports to the Central Montana District Office.

In the 2009 reorganization, the Central Montana District Office was created in Lewistown to oversee the operations of the Lewistown Field Office and the Upper Missouri River Breaks National Monument which has a headquarters office in Lewistown and Interpretive Center at Fort Benton.

Three Resource Areas were created in the Miles City District in 1965 - the Big Dry RA, the Prairie RA, and the Powder River RA with Resource Area Offices in Miles City.

In 1968, the South Dakota Resource Area Office was added in Belle Fourche, South Dakota to administer the public lands in South Dakota. During 1968 - 1974, the Miles City District also administered the public lands in North Dakota as part of the Prairie Resource Area.

In 1983, the Billings Resource Area was reassigned from the Lewistown District to the Miles City District.

In 1993, the South Dakota RA was reassigned from the Miles City District to the Dickinson District in Dickinson, ND, which, at the same time was renamed the Dakotas District.

BILLINGS OFFICE

Billings was the location of a Regional Office of the Grazing Service during the 1936 - 1946 period. After the creation of the BLM, Montana Grazing District No. 4, the Bridger Grazing District, was administered out of Billings until 1948, when the BLM assigned management of the Bridger Grazing District to the adjoining Worland District Office in Wyoming.

In 1954, administration of the Bridger Grazing District was transferred from Worland to Lewistown District Office, which maintained a small staff in Bridger at an office that was operated as a Sub-Office of the Lewistown District.

In 1958, a Bridger District Office was opened to administer the lands in the Bridger Grazing District. The Bridger District operated until 1961 when the District Office headquarters was relocated back to a new Billings District Office.

Two Resource Areas, the Absarokee RA and the Yellowstone RA, were established in the Billings District in 1965.

The Billings District Office and its two Resource Areas were abolished in the 1976 reorganization and merged with the Lewistown District. The Billings Office continued to operate as the Billings Resource Area Office reporting to the Lewistown District Office.

In 1983, when the Great Falls Resource Area Office was added to the Lewistown District, the Billings Resource Area Office was reassigned to the Miles City District to help balance the workload between the Districts in Montana.

In the 1998 reorganization, the Billings Resource Area Office was re-designated as the Billings Field Office reporting to the State Director.

In the 2009 reorganization, the Billings Field Office was not assigned to a District Office, and it continues to report directly to the Montana State Office. The Billings Field Office also administers the Pompeys Pillar National Monument which was established in 2001, with Visitor Center in Billings.

Prior to 1946, the General Land Office and the Grazing Service were responsible for activities on the public domain lands in Nevada.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE

The first Land Office in Nevada was established at Carson City in 1864. In 1950, the Carson City Land Office was closed and moved to Reno. Other Land Offices operated for shorter periods in the following locations. Austin (1867), Belmont (1868), Aurora (1868 - 1874), Elko (1872 - 1877 and 1914 - 1927), Eureka (1873 - 1893), and Pioche (1874 - 1877).

In 1971, the Land Office organization was eliminated in the BLM, and the Land Office functions were absorbed into the State Office and District Office staffs.

GRAZING SERVICE

The Grazing Service created five Grazing Service Districts in Nevada in the mid-1930s. Each Grazing District was headed by a District Grazier with clerical support and a Grazing Advisory Board made up of local ranchers. These Grazing Districts were:

- District No. 1, the Elko District, with office in Elko,
- District No. 2, the Pyramid District, in the northwest corner of the State administered first out of Reno, and later out of Winnemucca,
- District No. 3, the Virginia City District, with office in Minden,
- District No. 4, the Ely District, with office in Ely, and
- District No. 5, the Searchlight District, with office in Las Vegas.

Each of these Nevada Grazing Districts reported to a Grazing Service Regional Director in the Grazing Service's Region 3 Office located in Reno. Region 3 included the Grazing Service District Offices in both Nevada and California. During World War II, administration of over a million acres in the western portion of Grazing District No. 2, the Pyramid District, was assigned to the Grazing Service Susanville District Office in northeastern California. Most of the livestock operators lived closer to Susanville than to Winnemucca, and because of gas rationing, they were allowed to conduct their Grazing Service business with the Susanville Office, and this arrangement has continued.

The Battle Mountain Grazing District was not established during the Grazing Service era. In order to establish a Grazing District, the majority of the stockmen in an area had to petition the Secretary of the Interior. In a meeting held in central Nevada in 1937, the area ranchers decided they were opposed to the establishment of a grazing district.

In 1951, five years after the creation of the BLM, the ranchers in the Battle Mountain area requested that a grazing district be formed. The Battle Mountain Grazing District was the last Grazing District to be established in the West.

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

In 1946, when the General Land Office and the Grazing Service were merged to form the Bureau of Land Management, the new BLM organization in Nevada consisted of five District Grazing Offices in Elko, Minden, Ely, Las Vegas and Winnemucca, and a Land Office in Carson City. The District Offices reported to the new BLM Regional Office in San Francisco; the Carson City Land Office continued to report to the General Land Office Headquarters in the BLM Washington, D. C. Office.

In 1954, the BLM replaced its Regional Office organization with an Area Office organization, and established State Offices headed by a State Supervisor in each State. The Nevada BLM State Office was established in Reno, headed by a State Supervisor who reported to an Area Administrator headquartered in the BLM's new Area II Office in Salt Lake City, Utah. The Nevada District Offices and Land Office began reporting to the Nevada BLM State Supervisor.

In 1961, the BLM eliminated the Area Office organization, changed the Nevada State Supervisor's title to State Director, and the position reported directly to the BLM Headquarters Office in Washington, D. C., creating the organization that exists to this day.

The Land Office was moved from Carson City to Reno in 1950, where it operated until the early 1970s when the Land Office was eliminated as an organization in the BLM, and its duties and functions were absorbed into other sections of the State Office and the District Offices.

The Battle Mountain District Office was established in 1951, to administer the newly created Battle Mountain Grazing District No. 6.

The Carson City District Office was opened in 1954 when the Grazing District No. 3 Office was moved from Minden to Carson City.

Resource Areas were created in each of the six BLM Districts in the mid-1960s, and over the next 30 years, these Resource Areas were reorganized and renamed several times in each District.

In 1996, the BLM in Nevada reorganized the District Office/Resource Area Office organization that had existed for 30 years. The District Offices were re-designated as Field Offices. Two detached Resource Area Offices, the Tonopah RA in the Battle Mountain District and the Caliente RA in the Ely District, were re-designated as Field Stations reporting to the new Battle Mountain and Ely Field Offices. The Resource Area Offices that were co-located with the District Offices were eliminated.

A 2008 reorganization restored a three tier BLM State Office - District Office - Field Office organization in Nevada.

A Battle Mountain District Office was established in Battle Mountain to oversee the co-located Mount Lewis Field Office and the Tonopah Field Office in Tonopah.

A Carson City District Office was established in Carson City to oversee the co-located Sierra Front and Stillwater Field Offices.

An Elko District Office was established in Elko to oversee the co-located Tuscarora and Wells Field Offices.

An Ely District Office was established in Ely to oversee the co-located Egan and Schell Field Offices, and the Caliente Field Office in Caliente.

The Southern Nevada District Office was established in Las Vegas to oversee the co-located Las Vegas, Pahrump, and Red Rock/Sloan Field Offices.

The Winnemucca District Office was established in Winnemucca to oversee the co-located Black Rock and Humboldt River Field Offices.

The Battle Mountain District Office was established by BLM in 1951, to manage a large area of "Section 15" grazing lands in central Nevada which had just been designated as Battle Mountain Grazing District No. 6.

The Shoshone Resource Area and the Eureka Resource Area were combined into the Shoshone/Eureka Resource Area in 1975.

In the 1996 reorganization, the Shoshone/Eureka Resource Area Office was merged with the Battle Mountain District Office to form the Battle Mountain Field Office.

In 2008, when the three tier organization was reestablished in Nevada, a Battle Mountain District Office was established in Battle Mountain to oversee the operations of the Battle Mountain Field Office which was renamed the Mount Lewis Field Office, and the Tonopah Field Station which was re-designated as the Tonopah Field Office.

WINNEMUCCA OFFICES

Winnemucca District Office Winnemucca, NV

Black Rock Field Office Winnemucca, NV

Humboldt River Field Office Winnemucca, NV

The Winnemucca Office originated as a Grazing Service District Office administering the Nevada Grazing District No. 2, the Pyramid Grazing District. The Pyramid Grazing District was first administered out of Reno, but the office was later moved to Winnemucca. During World War II, the western portion of the Pyramid Grazing District was reassigned to the Grazing Service's Susanville Office, and lands have been managed by the BLM's offices in California ever since.

The Winnemucca Office continued as a BLM District Office after 1946. In 1964, four Resource Areas were created in the Winnemucca District in 1964 - the Paradise RA, the Denio RA, the Sonoma RA, and the Gerlach RA.

In 1969, the Paradise RA and the Denio RA were combined into the Paradise/Denino RA. In 1974, the Sonoma RA and the Gerlach RA were combined into the Sonoma/Gerlach RA.

In the 1996 reorganization, the two Resource Area Offices were merged with the Winnemucca District Office to form the Winnemucca Field Office which reported to the BLM's Nevada State Office.

In 2008, when the three tier organization was reestablished in Nevada, a Winnemucca District Office was re-established in Winnemucca, and two newly named Field Offices were created - the Black Rock Field Office in the western part of the District, and the Humboldt River Field Office in the eastern part of the District, both co-located with the Winnemucca District Office in Winnemucca.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE

The first Land Office in New Mexico was opened in Santa Fe in 1858. Other Land Offices were opened and operated in La Mesilla (1874 - 1883), Folsom (1889 - 1892), Clayton (1889 - 1892), Las Cruces (1883 - 1950), Roswell (1889 - 1924), Tucumcari (1908 - 1922), and Fort Sumner (1910 - 1924). Only the Santa Fe and the Las Cruces Land Offices were in operation when the BLM was established in 1946. The Las Cruces Land Office was closed and merged into the Santa Fe Land Office in 1950.

GRAZING SERVICE

The Grazing Service established seven Grazing Districts in New Mexico in the late 1930's.

District No. 1, the San Isidro District, had its office in Albuquerque, and was later merged into District No. 2.

District No. 2, the Magdalena District, with office in Albuquerque and later Magdalena.

District No. 3, the Border District, with office in Deming which later became a BLM District Office.

District No. 4, the Tularosa District, with office in Alamogordo, which later became a BLM District Office.

District No. 5, the Mesa District, which was later consolidated with District No. 4.

District No. 6, the Pecos District with office in Roswell, which later became the BLM's Roswell District Office.

District No. 7, the Chaco District which was carved out of District No. 2 and administered out of Albuquerque, then, beginning in 1941, from Gallup, and finally by BLM from the Farmington District Office.

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

When the Bureau of Land Management was created in 1946, its New Mexico organization consisted of a newly established Region V Office in Albuquerque, the Las Cruces and Santa Fe Land Offices, and the five Grazing District Offices at Albuquerque, Magdalena, Roswell, Alamogordo and Deming.

The BLM Region V Office was responsible for BLM operations in Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Louisiana, so the District Offices in New Mexico and Arizona reported to the Region V Office in Albuquerque.

In 1954, the BLM replaced its Regional organization with an Area Office organization, and established State Offices headed by State Supervisors in each State. The New Mexico State Office was established in Santa Fe, headed by a State Supervisor who reported to an Area Administrator headquartered in the BLM's new Area II Office in Salt Lake City, Utah.

In 1961, the BLM eliminated the Area Office organization, changed the New Mexico State Supervisor's title to State Director, and the State Director reported directly to the BLM Headquarters Office in Washington, D. C., the organization that exists to this day.

Meanwhile in New Mexico, a new BLM District Office was established in Farmington in 1948, to manage the Chaco Grazing District. In about 1950, the Magdalena District Office was moved to Socorro. In 1953, the Alamogordo and Deming Districts were consolidated and the District headquarters was relocated to Las Cruces.

In the mid-1960s, Resource Area Offices were created in each District, and the Farmington District Office was re-designated as a Resource Area Office reporting to the Albuquerque District Office.

In 1983, the Socorro District Office was re-designated as the Socorro Resource Area Office reporting to the Las Cruces District Office.

In 1983, a new BLM District Office, the Tulsa District Office, was opened in Tulsa, Oklahoma as a result of the BLM - Minerals Management Service (MMS) merger. This Tulsa District Office reported to the BLM New Mexico State Director.

In 1991, the Farmington Resource Area Office was re-designated as the Farmington District Office.

In the 1998 reorganization, the District Office - Resource Area Office organization was abolished. The Albuquerque, Farmington, Las Cruces, Socorro, Roswell, and Tulsa, Oklahoma District Offices, and the Carlsbad Resource Area Office were re-designated as Field Offices, with the Field Office Managers reporting directly to the New Mexico State Director in Santa Fe. The Resource Area Offices which were co-located with District Offices were eliminated.

In 2004, the BLM's three-tiered organization was re-established in New Mexico with District Offices located in Albuquerque, Farmington, Las Cruces and Roswell to supervise groups of Field Offices in New Mexico. The Oklahoma and Amarillo Field Offices continued to report directly to the New Mexico State Office.

ALBUQUERQUE OFFICES

Rio Puerco Field Office Albuquerque, NM

Socorro Field Office Socorro, NM

Albuquerque was the location of the Grazing Service's Region 7 Office that was established in 1935 to administer grazing in New Mexico and Arizona. New Mexico Grazing Districts No. 1, No. 2 and No. 7, the San Isidro, Magdalena and Chaco Grazing Districts were also administered out of the Albuquerque Office during the early days of the Grazing Service. Administration of Grazing District No. 7 was moved to Gallup in 1941, and an Albuquerque Grazing District Office administered Grazing Districts No. 1 and No. 2.

In 1946, the Grazing Service's Region 7 Office became a BLM Region V Office, and the Grazing District Office became the BLM's Albuquerque District Office.

The Rio Puerco and Rio Grande/Las Vegas Resource Area Offices were established in the Albuquerque District in the 1960s. The Rio Grande/Las Vegas Resource Area Office was moved to Taos in 1978, and renamed the Taos Resource Area.

In the 1998 reorganization, the Rio Puerco Resource Area Office was merged with the Albuquerque District Office to become the Albuquerque Field Office. The Taos Resource Area Office was re-designated as the Taos Field Office reporting to the New Mexico State Office.

In 2004, a District Office was reestablished in Albuquerque, and the Albuquerque Field Office was re-designated as the Rio Puerco Field Office. The Albuquerque District Office was given responsibility for the co-located Rio Puerco Field Office and the Socorro Field Office in Socorro.

There is also a Grants Field Station Office in Grants, New Mexico which, together with the National Park Service, manages the El Malpais National Monument. The Grants Field Station reports to the Rio Puerco Field Manager.

TULSA, OKLAHOMA OFFICE

The Tulsa, Oklahoma Field Office was a former U. S. Geological Survey Conservation Division office that had been in existence since the mid-1950s. It became a Minerals Management Service Office (MMS) in 1982. In 1983, the Office was reassigned to the BLM in the merger and realignment of the mineral leasing and mineral management activities of the BLM and the MMS. It became a new BLM District Office reporting to the New Mexico State Office.

A BLM Oklahoma Project Office had existed in Oklahoma City since 1997, reporting to the Albuquerque District Office. In 1993, the Oklahoma Project Office was renamed the Oklahoma Resource Area Office, and reassigned to the Tulsa District Office.

The principal mission of the Tulsa Office is leasing and management of Federal and Indian owned minerals, principally oil and gas and coal in Oklahoma, Texas and Kansas. The office is also a disposition center for the BLM's wild horse and burro program.

In the 1998 reorganization, the Tulsa District Office was re-designated the Tulsa Field Office reporting to the New Mexico State Office.

Prior to 1946, the General Land Office, the Grazing Service, and the Oregon & California (O&C) Revested Lands Administration managed activities on public lands in Oregon.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE

The first Land Office in Oregon was established in Portland in 1855. Other Land Offices established in Roseburg (1860), The Dalles (1875), and Lakeview (1877), operated until they were consolidated with the Portland Land Office shortly after the BLM was created in 1946.

Other Land Offices operated for shorter periods of time in the following locations: Winchester (1855 - 1860), Oregon City (1858 - 1905), Le Grande (1867 - 1924), Linkville (1872 - 1876), Drewsey (1888 - 1889), Burns (1889 - 1924), and Vale (1910 - 1927).

In 1971, the Land Office organization was eliminated in the BLM, and the Land Office functions were absorbed into State Office and District Office staffs.

GRAZING SERVICE

The Grazing Service created seven Grazing Districts in central and eastern Oregon in the mid-1930s. Originally, these Grazing districts were administered out the Grazing Service's Regional Office in Burns, but by 1938, the Grazing Service had also established local District Offices in Lakeview, Vale, Jordan Valley, Prineville and Baker.

These Grazing Districts were:

- Bonanza Grazing District No. 1, with office at Lakeview,
- Basin Grazing District No. 2, with office at Burns,
- Vale Grazing District No. 3, with office at Vale,
- Jordan Grazing District No. 4, with office at Jordan Valley, was combined into the Vale District in 1946,
- Crooked Valley Grazing District No. 5, with office at Prineville,
- Baker Grazing District No. 6, with office at Baker, and
- Echo Grazing District No. 7, a small Grazing District in north central Oregon with office at Prineville.

Each Grazing District was headed by a District Grazier with clerical support and a Grazing District Advisory Board composed of local area livestock operators. The District Grazier reported to a Regional Grazier in the Grazing Service's Region 4 Office located in Burns. The Grazing District Graziers were:

OREGON & CALIFORNIA REVESTED LANDS ADMINISTRATION (O&C)

In the late 1930s the Oregon & California Revested Lands Administration was established as an organizational unit within the General Land Office. Its purpose was to manage the timber resources on the Oregon and California railroad grant lands in western Oregon which had been returned to federal ownership in 1916.

The O&C opened District Forestry Offices in Salem, Roseburg, Medford, Eugene and Coos Bay. The District Offices were headed by a District Forester and a staff which administered timber sales from the O&C lands.

The General Land Office appointed Walter Horning as Chief Forester of the O&C Revested Lands Administration, and he served in this position from 1938 - 1946. In 1947, Chief Forester Walter Horning was appointed as the first Regional Director of Region I in BLM's new Regional organization, and the O&C District Forestry Offices at Coos Bay, Eugene, Medford, Salem and Roseburg became BLM District Offices.

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

In 1946, when the Grazing Service, the General Land Office, and the O&C Revested Lands Administration were merged to form the Bureau of Land Management, the new BLM organization in Oregon consisted of the Portland Land Office; six District Grazing Offices in Lakeville, Burns, Vale, Jordan Valley, Prineville, and Baker; and five District Forestry Offices in Coos Bay, Eugene, Medford, Salem and Roseburg.

In central and eastern Oregon:

- the BLM has continued to operate District Offices at Lakeview, Burns, Prineville and Vale,
- the Jordan Valley District was merged with Vale District in 1946, and

- the Baker District continued to operate until 1981, when it was consolidated into the Vale District. The Baker office remained open as a Resource Area Office reporting to the Vale District Office.

In western Oregon:

- the original O&C District Offices at Coos Bay, Eugene, Medford, Salem and Roseburg have continued to operate as BLM District Offices, and
- the BLM established another District Forestry Office at Bend to sell timber from public lands in eastern Oregon and southern Idaho. The Bend District Office operated from 1948 to 1956, when it closed because the other BLM District Offices in those areas took over forest management responsibilities.

Beginning in about 1950, the western Oregon Forestry Districts were divided into two or more Timber Management Units which were headed by Unit Foresters. After the BLM began establishing Resource Areas in the Districts in the mid-1960s, these Timber Management Units in the Oregon Districts became Resource Areas headed by Resource Area Managers.

The Resource Areas in most of the Oregon Districts have been reorganized and renamed several times.

Since 1961, the BLM's Oregon State Office has also been responsible for the administration of the Spokane District Office which manages the remaining public lands in the eastern part of the State of Washington.

Beginning in 1998, the BLM in most of the other western states was reorganized from a three-tier State Office/District Office/Resource Area Office organization to a two tier State Office/Field Office organization. However, in Oregon and Washington, only a modified two tiered system was implemented so as not to interrupt the Northwest Forest Management Planning effort which was taking place in the western Oregon Districts and the Columbia Basin Ecosystem Planning in the eastern Oregon districts. In Oregon and Washington, the Resource Areas have remained as organizational units within each District.

Therefore, the BLM organization in Oregon and Washington was not significantly impacted by the BLM's 2008 reorganization which restored the District Office/Field Office organization in the other States. However, by 2012, the "Resource Area" and "Resource Area Manager" nomenclature in Oregon is gradually being replaced by "Field Office" and "Field Manager."

The General Land Office opened the first Land Office in the State of Washington in Olympia in 1855. It was relocated to Seattle in 1887, and finally closed and merged with the Spokane Land Office in 1927. The Spokane Land Office had been in operation since 1883.

Other Land Offices in the State of Washington operated in the following locations for shorter periods of time. The Colfax Land Office opened in 1876 and was relocated to Spokane in 1883; Vancouver (1861 - 1924), Walla Walla (1871 - 1924), Yakima (1885 - 1920), and Waterville (1890 - 1924).

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

After the Bureau of Land Management was created in 1946, the BLM's Region I Office in Portland, Oregon had jurisdiction over the remaining public domain lands in eastern Washington.

In 1954, when the BLM reorganized into an Area Office/State Office organization, the BLM opened a Washington State Office in Spokane, Washington. The State Supervisors in that office reported to the BLM Director at the BLM Headquarters in Washington DC.

In 1961, the BLM's Washington State Office was abolished. The BLM Office in Spokane remained open as a Spokane District office reporting to the Oregon State Office in Portland, Oregon.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE

The Salt Lake City Land Office was established in 1868. Two other Land Offices operated for short periods of time in Beaver City (1876 - 1877) and Vernal (1905 - 1927) until they were closed and consolidated with the Salt Lake City Land Office. In 1946, the Salt Lake City Land Office became an organizational unit in the new Bureau of Land Management, and was co-located with the BLM's State Office that was established in Salt Lake City in 1954.

In 1971, the Land Office organization was eliminated in the BLM, and the Land Office functions were absorbed by State Office and District Office staffs.

GRAZING SERVICE

The Grazing Service created 11 Grazing Districts in Utah in the late 1930s and early 1940s. Each Grazing District Office was headed by a District Grazier with clerical support and a Grazing Advisory Board comprised of ranchers in the District. These Grazing Districts were:

District No. 1, the Promontory Grazing District, with office in Brigham City,
District No. 2, the Bonneville Grazing District, with office in Murray,
District No. 3, the Pahvant Grazing District, with office in Fillmore,
District No. 4, the Virgin Grazing District, with office in Cedar City,
District No. 5, the Escalante Grazing District, with office in Richfield,
District No. 6, the Monticello Grazing District, with office in Moab,
District No. 7, the San Rafael Grazing District, with office in Price,
District No. 8, the Duchesne Grazing District, with office in Vernal,
District No. 9, the Grand Grazing District, with office in Moab,
District No. 10, the Nebo Grazing District, with office in Nephi, and District No. 11, the Vermilion Grazing District.

The Grazing Districts in western Utah reported to the Grazing Service's Region 1 Office located in Salt Lake City. The Grazing Districts in eastern Utah reported to the Grazing Service's Region 2 Office also located in Salt Lake City. After the BLM was created in 1946, these Grazing District Offices continued to operate as BLM District Grazing Offices. BLM opened an additional District Office in Monticello in about 1948, closed the Nephi District Office in 1950, and closed the Brigham City and Murray District Offices in 1965.

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

In 1946, after the General Land Office and the Grazing Service were merged to form the Bureau of Land Management, the new BLM field organization in Utah consisted of the Salt Lake City Land Office and nine District Grazing Offices in Brigham City, Murray, Fillmore, Cedar City, Richfield, Price, Vernal, Moab, and Nephi.

These offices continued to operate as BLM District Grazing Offices. These BLM District Offices reported to the BLM's new Region IV Office that had opened in Salt Lake City. BLM opened an additional District Office in Monticello in about 1948, and closed the Nephi District Office in 1950, and the Brigham City and Murray District Offices in 1965.

In 1954, the BLM replaced its Regional Office organization with an Area Office/State Office organization. A BLM Utah State Office was established in Salt Lake City with a State Supervisor who reported to an Area Administrator for BLM's Area II which was also located in Salt Lake City.

In 1961, the BLM's Area Office organization was eliminated, and the State Supervisor position was retitled State Director who reported directly to the Director of the BLM in Washington, D. C.

In the mid-1960s, the BLM opened several Resource Area Offices in each District. During the following 30 years, these Resource Areas were reorganized and renamed several times in most of the Districts.

In 1975, the Monticello, Price, Kanab, and Fillmore Districts were merged into other Districts, but the offices in these locations remained open as Resource Area Offices.

In a 1998 reorganization, the District Office/Resource Area Office organization was eliminated. The District Offices were re-designated as Field Offices; the Resource Area Offices that were co-located with District Offices were abolished; and the detached Resource Area Offices were elevated to Field Office status.

A 2008 reorganization restored a three tier BLM State Office/District Office/Field Office organization in Utah.

A Color Country District Office established in Cedar City to oversee the operations of the Field Offices in Cedar City, Kanab, Richfield, and St. George, and the Henry Mountains Field Station in Hanksville.

A Canyon County District Office was established in Moab to oversee the operations of the Moab and Monticello Field Offices.

A Green River District Office was established in Vernal to oversee the operations of the Vernal and Price Field Offices.

A West Desert District Office was established in Salt Lake City to oversee the operations of the Salt Lake and Fillmore Field Offices.

The Grand Staircase-Escalante National Monument, headquartered at Kanab, reports to the BLM's Utah State Office, and has the Escalante Field Station in Escalante.

The Cedar City Office continued as a BLM District Office after 1946. Two Resource Areas, the Cedar RA, and the Dixie RA, were created in the Cedar City District in 1965. In 1975, the Cedar RA was renamed the Beaver River RA.

In 1974, when the Kanab District was merged into the Cedar City District, two additional Resource Areas, the Kanab RA and the Escalante RA, were added to the Cedar City District.

In 1998, the Resource Areas were eliminated and the Cedar City Office and the Kanab Office was re-designated as Field Offices reporting to the BLM's Utah State Office.

PRICE OFFICE

The Price office was first opened as a Grazing Service District Office in 1937, to administer Grazing District No. 7, the San Rafael Grazing District. It continued as a BLM District Office after 1946.

Three Resource Areas, the Price RA, the Ferron RA and the Robbers Roost RA were established in the Price District in 1965. At the same time, the Price and Robbers Roost Resource Areas were renamed the Price River Resource Area and the San Rafael Resource Area.

The Price District office operated until 1975, when BLM merged the Price and Monticello Districts and moved the District Office headquarters to Moab. The Price River Resource Area Office and the San Rafael Resource Area Office remained open in Price reporting to the Moab District Office.

In the 1998 reorganization, the two Resource Area Offices were merged to become the Price Field Office reporting to the Utah State Office.

In the 2008 reorganization, the Price Field Office became a part of the Green River District, headquartered in Vernal.

Other Land Offices operated for shorter periods of time in Lander (1890 - 1927), Sundance (1890 - 1920), Douglas (1890 - 1924), and Newcastle (1920 - 1924).

GRAZING SERVICE

The Grazing Service created five Grazing Districts in Wyoming in the mid-1930s. Each Grazing District was headed by a District Grazier with clerical support and a Grazing Advisory Board. These Grazing Service District Offices were:

- District No. 1, the Tensleep District, with office in Basin, later moved to Worland,
- District No. 2, the Windriver District, with office in Lander,
- District No. 3, the Divide District, with office in Rawlins,
- District No. 4, the Greenriver District, with office in Green River, later moved to Rock Springs in 1942, and
- District No. 5, the Sublette District, with office in Pinedale.

The Tensleep District was the first Grazing District established in the West by the Grazing Service.

These District Graziers in the five Wyoming Grazing Districts reported to a Grazing Service Regional Director at the Grazing Service Region 10 Office in Rawlins, Wyoming. The Grazing Service District Graziers were:

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

When the Bureau of Land Management was created in 1946, its organization in Wyoming consisted of the Cheyenne, Buffalo and Evanston Land Offices from the General Land Office organization and the Worland, Lander, Rawlins, Rock Springs and Pinedale District Grazing Offices from the Grazing Service.

In 1957, BLM established a new Casper District Office to manage a large area of Section 15 grazing lands in eastern Wyoming that had been part of the Lander District.

Resource Area Offices were established in each of these six Districts in the mid-1960s.

In the 1974 reorganization, the Pinedale and Lander District Offices and their Resource Area Offices were eliminated. The BLM offices in Pinedale and Lander remained open as the Pinedale and Lander Resource Area Offices, reporting to the Rock Springs and Rawlins District Offices.

In the 1998 reorganization, the two-tiered District Office - Resource Area Office organization was eliminated. The Casper, Rawlins, Rock Springs and Worland District Offices and the Buffalo, Newcastle, Kemmerer, Pinedale, Lander and Cody Resource Area Offices were each re-designated as Field Offices. The Field Managers in these 10 Field Offices reported directly to the BLM Wyoming State Office in Cheyenne. The Resource Area Offices that had been co-located with the Casper, Rawlins, Rock Springs and Worland District Offices were eliminated.

In the 2009 reorganization, the BLM's three-tiered organization was re-established in Wyoming. The 10 Field Offices remained in place, but three new District Offices were established to supervise groups of Field Offices.

The High Plains District Office, located in Casper, supervises the Casper, Buffalo, and Newcastle Field Offices.

The High Desert District Office, located in Rock Springs, supervises the Rock Springs, Rawlins, Pinedale, and Kemmerer Field Offices.

The Wind River/Bighorn Basin District Office, located in Worland, supervises the Worland, Lander, and Cody Field Offices.

The Denver Service Center served BLM offices in Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, New Mexico and Arizona. The Portland Service Center served the BLM offices in Alaska, Washington, Idaho, Oregon, California and Nevada.

In 1973, the Portland Service Center was abolished and consolidated into the Denver Service Center.

NATIONAL INTERAGENCY FIRE CENTER Boise, Idaho

The National Interagency Fire Center (NIFC) originated as the BLM's Great Basin Fire Center which was established in 1965 in Boise, Idaho. Its purpose was to provide coordination and support for wildfire suppression on the BLM administered public lands.

This mission was soon expanded to include all the public lands. The Forest Service joined BLM at the Center in 1969, and it was renamed the Boise Interagency Fire Center (BIFC). The National Park Service, the Bureau of Indian Affairs and the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service were added to the BIFC partnership during the 1970's.

In 1993, the Center was renamed the National Interagency Fire Center (NIFC) to more accurately reflect its national mission.

OUTER CONTINENTAL SHELF (OCS) OFFICES

The first BLM Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) Offices was set up in New Orleans in 1954 to administer the Department of the Interior's oil and gas leasing programs off shore in the Gulf of Mexico. In 1972, additional OCS Offices were established in Los Angeles, New York City, and Anchorage, Alaska to administer off shore oil and gas leasing along the Pacific and Atlantic Coasts.

In a 1982 reorganization, the Secretary of the Interior combined the off shore oil and gas leasing responsibilities of the BLM with the off shore mineral management responsibilities of the U. S. Geological Survey to form a new Interior agency, the Minerals Management Service. At that time the BLM's four OCS Offices were reassigned to the Minerals Management Service.

MISSOURI RIVER BASIN LAND CLASSIFICATION PROJECT Billings, Montana

Project Manager

Robert D. Nielson	1948 - 1954
-------------------	-------------

The Missouri River Basin Land Classification Project was a feature of the Pick-Sloan Plan for development and control of the water resources of the Missouri River. Most of the Department of the Interior agencies participated in the project. The Bureau of Land Management's role was to determine the physical characteristics and use suitability of the 23 million acres of public land in the Missouri River Basin under its administration.

The BLM's portion of the project was administered out of BLM's Billings, Montana Regional Office. Over 80 BLM employees worked on the project which was completed in 1954.

The project provided basic resource data for management and disposition of the public lands, and also valuable training for many employees who later became leaders in the BLM.

The following is a description of the Project prepared by Project Manager Bob Nielson, along with a list of the BLM employees who participated in the Project.

In the late 1940s after World War II, the United States Congress authorized the implementation of the "Pick-Sloan Plan" for the control and management of the waters of the Missouri River Basin in the interest of flood control and agricultural development through irrigation. Several large dams and impoundments were planned on the main stream and its primary tributaries. The entire drainage basin had been studied by the Army Corps of Engineers and the Bureau of Reclamation, but there were other agencies involved. Those included the U. S. Geological Survey, National Park Service, Bureau of Mines, Bureau of Indian Affairs, Fish and Wildlife Service and the Bureau of Land Management in the Department of the Interior. There was a need for coordination and interaction by the several agencies.

After a joint meeting of agency representatives at Omaha in about 1947, the Secretary of the Interior ordered that a field committee be organized to meet regularly, to plan and coordinate jointly, and resolve problems amicably to achieve a comprehensive public land and water and watershed and related resource conservation and development program. A budget was approved and funds were allocated to each agency based on its proposed and approved contribution to the base plan.

The BLM received funding for the inventory and classification of the 23 million acres of public lands under its administration. BLM was also allocated funds to conduct cadastral surveys as needed. The inventory and classification included vegetative cover and characteristics, soil conditions, topography and slope, accessibility, and other data necessary to determine the use suitability and management requirements of the public lands.

The job was organized by the Billings Regional Office of the BLM with Robert D. Nielson in charge. The program was carried out on a drainage basis as related to the principal Bureau of Reclamation water impoundment projects.

The BLM needed soil scientists, range conservationists, foresters, land economists and planners, real estate appraisers, draftsmen, report writers and editors, and secretaries. Many were recruited from existing BLM staff, but some came from other agencies and from graduating classes from universities. The total staff throughout the six-year program included over eighty employees. About fifty people were in the initial crew.

The program proceeded on a watershed basis in order of the priority and schedule of projects of the Bureau of Reclamation. Coordination of the work was accomplished by the Field Committee which met at least once per month to review the program and progress, and to resolve problems. There were thirty-five watershed based land classification reports published which included maps showing the land ownership categories (private, state, federal, etc.), the physical characteristics of the public lands (vegetation, soils, etc.), and its use suitability - farming, grazing, watershed, wildlife, forestry, recreation - as a combination of multiple uses or otherwise.

The classification data provided for improved management of grazing and forestry uses, and general resource conservation for sustained use. It identified tracts, "pot hole" lands, passed over by homesteaders which had special value for water fowl, particularly in North Dakota. It identified isolated tracts, particularly in Kansas, Nebraska and South Dakota, that were unsuitable for any public use and could best serve in private ownership.

The land classification project was completed in 1954 by a staff headquartered at the BLM's Denver Regional Office. The information in the classification reports resulted in the following achievements:

1. Public sale of many isolated tracts, particularly in South Dakota. Sales were held at the county seat in the county in which the lands were situated.

2. The exchange of several thousand acres of state owned lands in Glacier National Park for public lands of equal value that were best suited for state ownership and management in conjunction with other state lands. The appraised value of the state lands and timber exceeded seven million dollars.
3. Accelerated conservation programs and management of critical watershed lands (check dams, water spreading, reseeding, rotation grazing).
4. Transfer to BLM of Land Use Lands, "L. U. Lands," in Montana that had been managed by the Forest Service.

The Missouri River Basin Classification Program of the BLM made a difference. It provided much valuable resource data that facilitated greater professionalism in the management of the public lands. It also launched and provided valuable training for many BLM employees, some of whom became State Directors, and one who became the Director of the BLM.

Copies of each report that was published were filed in the Library of Congress at its request.ö
